

Accuser Faces Opie, Testifies in Probe Of Hanging Charges

Graves Registry Officer Says He Saw Corpses With Ropes on Necks and Hoods on Heads.

GEORGIAN CLARIFIES EARLIER STATEMENT

Savannah Man Appears to Refute Senator's "Charges"—Flare Created by His Testimony.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Washington, January 4.—Accuser and accused, in dramatic fashion, faced each other today before a senate committee investigating charges that American soldiers had been hanged without trial in France.

Near the close of a seven-hour session Major Hierome L. Opie, of Savannah, Va., commander of the third battalion, 116th Infantry overseas, went on the stand to enter emphatic denial of charges by former service men that he had shot down some of his own soldiers in cold blood on the battlefield. He was asked, however, to step aside until other witnesses then in the room could testify against him, meanwhile being given the right through counsel to cross-examine them.

Responding to his name when the Opie charges were taken up, Grayson H. Withrow, of Baltimore, still in his early twenties, stepped to the front and testified that he saw the officer seize a gun from a private and fire at a man in his command. He was falling overhead, he said, and there was tremendous excitement, but he saw no one else from his retreat in a shell hole he peeped out and saw the man fall as the major's gun barked. But he could not say whether Opie had killed him, declaring the latter, standing out in the open, was within arm's reach of half a dozen officers when the shot was fired.

Refuses to Give Names.

As Withrow left the stand William F. St. John, a young man from Lynchburg, Va., suffering from nervous troubles resulting from service overseas, accused the Virginian of shooting down a "runner" at the front because he failed to heed a third being ordered to halt. Four other men saw the killing, he declared, but he refused of his own accord to give their names, on the ground that he had not been able to confer with them and that it would not be just to him if they should appear and "not back up" his charges. One of them, he said, had developed "cold feet" and was unwilling to come. Reminded by Chairman Brandegee that the names must be submitted, St. John complied, mentioning first the cousin of one of Major Opie's counsel, sitting across the table. It was while St. John was being cross-examined by John A. Cutchins, of Richmond, Va., Major Opie's counsel, that he lost control of his shattered nerves and dramatically shouted that he was dealing with a bunch of fanatics who "are trying to prove I am nutty." Mr. Cutchins promptly disclaimed such an intention.

Seeing that the young man was worn out by excitement, Senator Watson, democrat, Georgia, whose charges of illegal executions are under investigation, declined to question him. Tomorrow Major Opie will testify in his own behalf.

Tells of Finding Corpses.

Starting out with the testimony of Rufus F. Hubbard, of New York, who was an embalming assistant with the American graves registration service, declared he found a noose and black cap on the bodies of three American soldiers dug up in the little French cemetery at Bazailles, the committee permitted the inquiry to run its own course. Right after the testimony of Hubbard, another witness, who assisted in a legal execution, declared that the body was buried, noose and black cap intact, in the same cemetery where Hubbard said three had been found. A farm boy from Georgia, who

VALERA TO PRESS ALTERNATE OFFER TO EARLY DECISION

Gives Full Proposal to Public for First Time. Heated Exchange in Daily Eireann.

DOCUMENT DIFFERS FROM ORIGINAL PAPER

De Valera Offer Contains No Oath of Allegiance, But Makes King Association Head.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Dublin, January 4.—Eamon de Valera, when the daily eireann met this evening, produced for the first time publicly his alternative proposals to the Irish treaty. A fortnight ago he was asked by Arthur Griffith to publish them and Mr. Griffith repeated his challenge at today's debate. Mr. de Valera's original idea, as announced by himself, was to move his alternative proposals in the event of rejection of the treaty. But, he changed his mind, and now intends, if he is permitted, to move them as an announcement to the resolution approving the treaty.

The document, whose secrecy has been carefully guarded, except for obscure hints by daily members who saw it in the private sessions, was issued to the press, accompanied by an appeal by Mr. de Valera in a manifesto addressed to the Irish people, urging them not to be stampeded in the support of the treaty, which would not bring peace.

Differs from Original.

The document as issued differs, according to Mr. Griffith, from the document submitted in the private sessions of the daily eireann. It follows the main outline of the treaty made at the Downing street residence of the British prime minister and signed by Arthur Griffith, Michael Collins and the other plenipotentiaries, but implies, Mr. de Valera contends, a fundamental difference in principle. It asserts that the sole source of authority in Ireland rests with the Irish, while by the treaty, it is argued, it is derived through the king.

Mr. de Valera's plan contains no oath of allegiance, but admits recognition of his Britannic majesty as head of the association of states in the British commonwealth with which Ireland externally associates itself.

The debate today revealed the presence of at least three parties in the daily eireann—the supporters of the treaty made in London, the supporters of Mr. de Valera and his alternative proposals, and some active republicans opposed to both sets of proposals. Vigorous speeches were made for and against the treaty, but at the conclusion of the session there was no indication of any change in the sentiment of the members, and the best

Shantung Parley Will Close Today; Agreement Is Seen

Probabilities of New Deadlock in Chinese and Jap Discussions Are Discounted.

PROGRESS IS MADE BY NAVAL EXPERTS

Japan Contributes Step Toward Decision by Accepting Submarine Principle Voiced by Root.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Washington, January 4.—After a five-day new year's breathing space the arms negotiations were resumed today with an impetus that swept most of the troublesome problems of the conference almost to the point of decision.

Uppermost among the separate discussions which appeared tonight to be approaching a conclusion was the controversy between the Japanese and Chinese over Shantung. It was indicated that the conversations might end tomorrow one way or the other, and that the predominant belief was that the result would be an agreement rather than a final deadlock.

There was outward indication tonight after the Chinese and Japanese had resumed their "conversations" on the subject, that either side had abandoned its former position regarding the troublesome issue that developed over the mode of payment for the Kiaochow-Tsainanfu railroad in the former German leasehold.

Nevertheless, the joint communiqué issued by the two delegations after their meeting and the discussions would be "completed" tomorrow and there was apparent in many quarters a confidence that a final means of settlement would be found.

At the meeting both delegations entered directly into a discussion of the three alternative plans of payment for the disputed railroad, but adjourned after a session lasting more than two hours, without definite action being taken.

Reasons Demanded.

The Japanese delegation was said to have reiterated its demand for payment by loans to the Chinese government through Japanese bankers which the Chinese declined to consider.

A final agreement was also in sight on the question of a revised Chinese tariff. After a long argument the tariff subcommittee came together on a proposal to increase China's tariff schedules under an international committee plan and the far eastern committee of the whole is expected to ratify the decision tomorrow.

Among naval experts such progress was made with technical details of the naval limitation plan that in some quarters it was declared final disposition of the subject was only a question of hours. Precise regulations for scrapping ships and details of replacement were numbered among the day's agreements in the naval subcommittee.

On the question of submarine regulations, which has waited on further advice from the foreign capitals, Japan contributed another step toward decision by accepting in principle the use of submarines against merchant vessels and to make violations acts of piracy. Italy alone remains to accept the proposals and a discussion by the full committee may take place late tomorrow.

New Troubles Ahead.

At tomorrow's meeting of the Far Eastern committee, however, new troubles may be encountered through China's request that the famous "twenty-one demands" be brought up for conference discussion. A protest was lodged by Japan just before the last meeting of the committee adjourned and what promises to be a stubborn debate is expected by some delegates before the point is decided.

In some quarters, also, considerable discussion is believed likely before there is a definite decision on the Root submarine proposals.

France has indicated a desire to see some of the terms of the resolutions fully discussed and clearly defined, and although the French said tonight they did not propose to press the point, it was indicated that some troublesome points probably would be injected into the conversations sooner or later by someone of the foreign powers.

Meantime the American advisory committee met and canvassed opinion of the submarine question with the result that the committee's previous position for retention of under-water craft within strict regulations was reaffirmed. Members said a survey of editorial comment and public opinion generally convinced them that the American people strongly desired that submarine operations be brought within the consideration of humane warfare.

Treaty Nears Completion.

The five-power naval limitation treaty which will explicitly define the agreements reached by the Washington conference, is nearing completion and soon will be ready for presentation to each of the signatory powers for approval. When approved, it will

Washington, January 4.—Debate on the Dyer anti-lynching bill got under way today in the house despite a determined filibuster on the part of democratic opponents of the measure. Three hours were spent in roll calls demanded by Representative Garrett, Tennessee, democratic leader, in a futile attempt to head off discussion.

Half of that time later was given over to debate by Representative Dyer, republican, Missouri, author of the bill, and Representative Sumners, democrat, Texas, one of the leaders in the fight against it, who reiterated arguments advanced by them in the majority and minority views of the judiciary committee members when the bill was favorably reported.

The measure is to be set aside tomorrow for consideration of the treasury appropriation bill, which will have right of way until it is sent to the senate. Representative Mondell, republican leader, in a statement today predicted a vote in the near future on the Dyer bill, but stated that debate on it would be interwoven with various appropriations bills which will come from the house appropriations committee in rapid succession.

Mr. Dyer in opening debate on his measure declared it was imperative that the federal government afford protection to persons liable to suffer violence at the hands of mobs. He told of a number of lynchings that had occurred where the mob killed and not been guilty of attacks on women. During his remarks Mr. Dyer paid tribute to the service rendered by negro soldiers overseas and contended that members of that race were entitled to protection from the federal government.

Mr. Sumners, attacking the authority for a number of Mr. Dyer's statistics on lynchings, declared passage of the bill would increase rather than decrease mob violence and would have a tendency to engender race hatred. He assailed the measure on constitutional grounds, contending it would be an invasion of the states' rights and devoted much of his time to discussion of the constitutional phase of the question.

In answer to a question, Mr. Clarke stated that since Mrs. Tyler had never been a member of the Klan, her resignation from the propagation department would sever entirely her connection with the Klan.

Mrs. Tyler has been under constant fire since the first attack on the organization was launched several months ago. Her name and that of Kiegle Clarke were coupled in sensational charges, and at one time county police here said that an attempt was made to shoot Mrs. Tyler at her home on the Howell Mill road.

According to officials, Mrs. Tyler has never been a member of the Klan, and her resignation as a member of the propagation department severed entirely her connection with the organization.

Recital by Mrs. Estelle Williams, charged with murder, of events leading up to the shooting of N. L. Post, engineer for the Seaboard Air Line, whom, she stated, she had not seen for two years previous to the night of the killing, sensational testimony of Mrs. Alma Harvey, a member of the party the night of the slaying, and the introduction of witnesses by the state in rebuttal, who swore that they had seen Post's automobile in front of the Williams home on several occasions prior to the shooting, were outstanding features of the afternoon session Wednesday of the trial of Mrs. Williams in Fulton superior courts before Judge John D. Humphries.

The trial, which began Wednesday morning, will probably be concluded Thursday. During the morning session, Dr. George Noble testified that he believed that the dead man was shot through the back.

The first witness called during the afternoon was City Officer Evans, who stated that he arrived at the house soon after the shooting, as he lived near the Williams home. He declared on the stand that Mrs. Williams "had been drinking to a right smart extent."

Mrs. Williams' Statement. Mrs. Williams, who made a statement in her own behalf, which was 17,000 words long, declared that she shot Post after he had thrown her to the floor in her own kitchen and called her vile names.

The defendant started her story by relating events of the afternoon, stated that while she was waiting in front of the Fourth National bank for her friend, Mrs. Alma Harvey, of 60 Garnett street, whom she had missed, Post came along in his automobile and offered to take her home.

"I recognized Mr. Post as a man I met about seven years ago, and had only seen two or three times since, the last time about two years ago. He said that he was going out to see a friend on Georgia avenue, and he would be glad to take me home."

"When we arrived at my house, he asked to use the telephone, and I told him to come in and use it. I phoned Mrs. Harvey, and she was not in, so I told him to tell her to wait at the house for me, as I was coming up there soon. Then Mr. Post used the phone and called his wife and told her that he was coming home, for her to be ready, as he had to be back down town at 7:30 to keep an engagement. I was standing in my room fixing my hair, and could hear what his wife said, and she said, 'If you can't stay when you come home, you need not come at all,' and hung up on him. Then Mr. Post said, 'What do you think about a wife that will treat her husband like that,' and I said nothing."

Steps at Curtis Home. Mrs. Williams then stated that she

ROBERTSON QUILTS CHAMBER PLACE

Fred Houser Is Named Temporary Secretary Pending Selection of Successor.

Fred Houser, secretary of the Atlanta Convention bureau and the Atlanta Hotel Men's association, was named as acting secretary of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce for 1922, pending the selection of a permanent secretary, at a meeting of the executive committee of the chamber of commerce Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. Houser will succeed Charles Robertson, secretary of the organization for 1921. In a recent letter addressed to W. O. Foote, president of the chamber of commerce, Mr. Robertson stated that he did not desire to be considered a candidate for re-election, as he expected to enter another line of business in the near future.

Several applications were considered but as the committee was desirous of making the right selection, no action was taken, other than to appoint a secretary pro-tem.

By arrangement with the convention bureau, Mr. Houser's services have been secured until a permanent secretary can be named. Mr. Foote stated that the committee considered itself fortunate to avail itself of Mr. Houser's services, even though temporarily.

MAJOR HOLTZCLAW DIES IN PERRY

Perry, Ga., January 4.—(Special.) Major Robert N. Holtzclaw died at his home in Perry Tuesday night about 9 o'clock, after an illness of only five days. Last Thursday afternoon he seemed to be in good health, but at midnight he was partially paralyzed, and on Sunday about 1 o'clock he again suffered another stroke, from which he never recovered. The deceased is survived by his widow, Mrs. Evelyn Gilbert Holtzclaw; four sons, Ben, Robert, Jack and Elbe, and one daughter, Mrs. Louise Almon; his mother, Mrs. M. C. Holtzclaw; three brothers, Ben, John and Henry, and one sister, Mrs. Mary Robinson. He was admitted to the bar at Houston superior court on March 3, 1874, by Judge Barnard Hill, and had been engaged actively in practice of his profession ever since. He was well known throughout the state, having served Houston county as representative in the Georgia legislature for a number of years. He was buried in Evergreen cemetery Wednesday afternoon. The funeral services being held at his residence. A large number of the members of the bar of the Macon judicial circuit, composed of Judge Henry A. Mathews, of the superior court; Judge A. C. Eiler, of the city court; Judge John P. Ross, R. C. Jordan and all the members of the bar of Houston county attended in a body after meeting in the courthouse and passing resolutions touching on his death.

LAST SERVICES TODAY FOR REV. J. A. JENSON

Funeral services for Rev. J. A. Jenson, former Atlanta pastor, who died at his home in Greenville, Miss., Tuesday, will be conducted at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the chapel of Harry G. Poole, by Dr. L. O. Bricker and Rev. Wright Moore. Interment will follow in North View cemetery. The body arrived in Atlanta Wednesday.

OFFICERS SEATED AT CAPITAL CITY CAMP OF WOODMEN

New officers for Capital City camp, No. 786, Woodmen of the World, and Maple Grove camp, No. 58, Woodmen Circle, were seated at joint installation ceremonies Wednesday night in the Red Men's wigwam. Dr. Herbert Kennedy, prominent young physician of Atlanta, was installed as consul commander of Capital City camp. Craddock Goin, editor of the Walter B. Brown trade magazines of Atlanta, was seated as adviser lieutenant. Other officials installed were: George White, banker; J. B. Shannons, clerk; Sovereign Schofield, escort; Henry C. Claflin, watchman; Captain W. Laupkin Raley, director of the degree team; and G. A. Wright, auditor. Installation ceremonies for Capital City camp were directed by C. H. Mrs. R. J. Sauls, of 18 Elmira place, was overcome by fumes from a gas heater in the basement of her home at noon Wednesday. She was discovered by a workman and taken to Grady hospital, where she was pronounced dead Wednesday night. She was out of danger. It was stated that she had experienced a narrow escape from death.

NEW KIRKWOOD LEAGUE TO HOLD MEET TONIGHT

The Kirkwood Improvement league, newly organized by fumes from a gas heater, will hold a meeting at 8 o'clock Thursday night in the school house in Kirkwood.

OFFICERS ARE NAMED BY SECOND BAPTIST

At the annual business meeting of the Second Baptist church, of which Dr. Henry Alford Porter is pastor, which was held at the church Wednesday night, reports of various activities of the church were read and officers for the ensuing year elected. Officers for the coming year are John S. Spalding, re-elected superintendent of the school, beginning his ninth consecutive year in this office; Paul A. Egall, re-elected church clerk; H. R. Laupkin Raley, director of the degree team; and G. A. Wright, auditor.

E. L. Harfield refused re-election to this last office. A resolution praising his work and deploring his decision to withdraw from the office was adopted.

A resolution was adopted regretting the loss of F. H. Leavell, secretary of the B. Y. P. U. in Georgia for nine years, who has been called by the Southern Baptist convention for special work in Baptist schools.

CENTRAL CHURCH TO HOLD ANNUAL MEETING TONIGHT

The annual meeting of the church and congregation of the Central Congregational church will be held this evening. Supper will be served in the recreation room of the church at 6:15. Following the supper will be an hour of reunion and fellowship, together with the calling of the church roll. In connection with this social hour an enjoyable program of music and short addresses will be given at 8 o'clock. Following reports of the church's activities, the annual election of officers will be held.

HOLDS DISCUSSIONS ON STORY OF JOSEPH

Rev. Roy Brumbaugh began a series of discussions on the story of Joseph Wednesday night, when practically every Sunday school teacher in the city's Presbyterian churches was present to start the new year out right. Next Wednesday evening the attendance and program will be in the hands of the elders, deacons and trustees. Elder C. J. Langley, in charge. The ladies' Bible class, Mrs. M. Foster, president, will arrange the program for the third service of the series January 18, and the Lusher association, R. L. Gatchell, president, will have the fourth service in charge January 28.

JONES' SHOWS BOOKED FOR BIG FAIR IN 1922

The Johnny J. Jones exposition shows will again occupy the midway when the 1922 Southeastern fair is held, October 12-21, it is announced by R. M. Striplin, secretary of the Southeastern fair association. The show is wintering in Orlando, Fla. Plans are being made by Oscar Mills, newly elected president of the Southeastern fair association, for increasing the educational features of the next exposition. One of the first projects will be construction of new and larger quarters for the swine and cattle departments of the fair.

ATLANTANS PROMOTED ON BIRMINGHAM NEWS

Charles A. Fell, news editor of The Birmingham News, a former Atlanta newspaper man, has been made managing editor of that publication. It is learned here, James E. Chappell, to whose position Mr. Fell succeeds, has been made assistant to Publisher Hanson. Formerly, Chappell, formerly a member of the staff of The Constitution, fills Mr. Fell's former position of news editor.

"POET OF PIANO" TITLE IS GIVEN TO RACHMANINOFF

"A poet of the piano," is the term applied by a leading eastern critic recently to Sergei Rachmaninoff, the Russian pianist, who gives his second Atlanta recital at the Auditorium next Wednesday night. The many Atlantans who heard the Russian two seasons ago will be inclined to agree with the writer, who said:

"It is little one can say of the technical perfection of a master. However, there are things outstanding in his work. One was his use of the pedals with fine discrimination, not to cover up imperfections as often is the case, but to obtain a clarity of expression that was truly marvelous."

"Again, Rachmaninoff is to be commended for his choice of programs. He seldom gave one of such an interest. There was nothing hackneyed in his list. Liszt, Grieg, Chopin, all told their stories, which were of varied interest."

WILSON FOUNDATION DRIVE OPENS JAN. 16

The campaign to establish the Wilson foundation, a million-dollar fund, to be secured through popular subscription to honor the former president, will be opened in "Wilson hour," as the hour between noon and 1 o'clock in the afternoon of January 16, has been designated.

Contributions will be received during that hour, but not sought, by members of the committee, who will remain in their homes or offices for that purpose. Georgia's quota of this fund, which will be raised to perpetuate the name and principles of Woodrow Wilson, is $35,000.

Following the Wilson hour, the active campaign for subscriptions in the state will be opened by a committee of which Pleasant A. Stovall, of Savannah, is chairman, and William Murphy, also of Savannah, treasurer. Miss Annie G. Wright, of Augusta, is chairman of the women's committee for the state.

DR. BUSH ENTERS RACE FOR RAIL COMMISSION

Dr. O. B. Bush, prominent physician of Elham, will be a candidate for a position on the state railroad commission, it was stated by close friends here yesterday.

Members of the state railroad commission are elected to the office for large terms of two years each. The election this year is of especial importance because of the fact that C. Murphy Candler, present chairman of the commission, is to retire from office, and one of the members of the commission will be elected to succeed him as chairman. The terms of Mr. Candler and James A. Perry come to an end this year.

Mrs. Mozley Installs Additional Equipment In Her Private School On Gordon Street

Enrollment of a number of new pupils for the spring term of school has made it necessary for Mrs. J. W. Mozley to increase the classroom capacity of her school.

By this means Mrs. Mozley is now in position to accommodate pupils who, on account of illness or for other reasons, need individual instruction to enable them to make their grades this term.

Mothers who wish to take advantage of this opportunity should see Mrs. Mozley at once, as only a limited number of pupils can be accommodated.

$40,000 in Silks Loot in Daylight Holdup; Recovered

New York, January 4.—A daylight holdup and theft of an automobile truck containing $40,000 worth of silk was reported by the police late today. After the truck and its contents had been recovered. Charles Fritz, driver of the truck, told the police that he and his two assistants had been held up by motor bandits in the Bronx, bundled into the robbers' car and taken to a woods near Van Cortlandt park, where they were ordered to "walk north" under pain of being shot.

Circling back, they returned to the city and notified a policeman. The truck was found in a garage, where it had been placed in dead storage.

FORMER CHICAGO EDITOR SUCCUMBS

Tacoma, Wash., January 4.—Colonel C. A. Snowden, formerly editor of The Chicago Times and The Tacoma Ledger, died today, aged 74.

One of his journalistic feats was publishing in The Chicago Times the full text of the revised version of the New Testament received by cable from London. He was a national authority on Masonry, in which he held the thirty-third degree, and was the author of a history of Washington state.

DR. W. T. STUCHELL HEADS ATLANTA MASONIC CLUB

At the regular weekly meeting of the Atlanta Masonic club held Wednesday at the Peacock cafe, officers for the first half of 1922 were elected, as follows: Dr. William T. Stuchell, president; Charles N. Walker and W. J. Hubbard, vice presidents; Agnew F. Field, secretary; LeRoy Webb, treasurer. The following were elected to the board of governors: R. H. Jones, Jr., J. E. Addicks, Paul M. Coleman, J. C. Gentry and Lon Credele.

Dr. Stuchell, the newly-elected president, was the speaker of the occasion, and gave a very interesting address, which was enthusiastically received by the club members. Dr. Stuchell, in his address, stressed the opportunities of the new year for constructive service on the part of each of the members individually and the Masonic club as an organization.

The retiring officers were Robert H. Jones, Jr., president; George Eubanks, vice president; Paul M. Coleman, secretary; LeRoy Webb, treasurer, was re-elected.

MISS FRANCES KNIGHT RESTS IN WEST VIEW

Funeral services for Miss Frances Walton Knight, aged 26, who died Monday at her home, 1044 Linwood place, were conducted at 10:30 o'clock Wednesday morning at the chapel of H. M. SOUTH'S REQUESTS IGNORED IN BILL

BY JAMES A. HOLLOMAN.
Constitution Bureau.
Raleigh Hotel.

Washington, January 4.—(By Constitution Leased Wire.)—In the first bill under the new budget plan of grouping appropriations by departments, which will be taken up by the house tomorrow, the general public building item is included, but it is notable that there is not one single item of that nature for the southern states.

In Georgia alone there have been introduced and reintroduced at each recurring session since 1915 sixty-six public building bills. Many of these have received favorable reports from the committee. Many of them, indeed, are imperative, where present leased postoffices are crowded, or unsanitary, or wholly unsuited to federal uses, and in many instances lots have long since been bought and paid for by the government and bills authorizing the erection of federal buildings thereon have already passed the house.

There are other instances where legislation was fully enacted away from the south by the construction of federal buildings in Georgia, but for which the treasury has to this date refused to honor warrants.

Accepted Cession. During the war when the resources of the government were taxed to mobilize and equip soldiers, the southern states accepted without a murmur the cession of federal building operations in towns and cities not equipped with government buildings, but with the enormous drain upon the south by federal taxation, it has a right to expect that the postoffice plants in the south shall be kept adequate to demands, and that cities entitled to federal buildings and not so equipped shall be at least to a limited measure, provided for.

The public buildings in the appropriation bill which comes up for consideration tomorrow include principally buildings and additions to buildings in Washington, and in some of the larger federal buildings of the east. While the bill carrying appropriations for river and harbor work has not yet been presented to the house, it is also assured that the south Atlantic will not get a dollar for new projects this year, with reduced appropriations for all necessary work, such as dredging in navigable waters, etc.

No Extension Work. Under the existing rule the allocation of funds for river and harbor work is left entirely to the board of army engineers, and while the Savannah river will probably get enough money to keep the channel open, and other navigable waters in Georgia will be kept from actually shoaling, there is not the slightest chance for any extension of work or development this year as along the lines of former years.

GRIFFIN MADE HEAD OF BIG FLORIDA BANK

Announcement of the election of James Leslie Griffin, of Atlanta, president of the First National bank of West Palm Beach, Fla., was received in Atlanta Wednesday by W. P. Manley, president of the Bankers Trust company, who is a member of the board of directors of the West Palm Beach bank. Mr. Griffin has been serving as non-resident examiner assigned as examiner-at-large in the sixth federal reserve district, with headquarters in Atlanta. He has resigned this place to accept the position as the head of the Florida bank.

Mr. Griffin, who has made Atlanta his home for several years, originally was from Gadsden, Ala. He entered the banking business at Montgomery, Ala., as a clerk in the Exchange National bank of that city. He served in every department of that bank until commissioned as national bank examiner assigned to the third federal reserve district, with headquarters at Philadelphia, Pa. Since 1918 he has been stationed at Atlanta.

Two Atlanta men are interested in the First National Bank of West Palm Beach besides Mr. Griffin, these being Mr. Manley and W. Y. Banks, vice president of the Citizens and Southern bank of Atlanta, both of whom are directors in the Florida institution.

In making the announcement of the election of Mr. Griffin as president, Mr. Manley declared that the First National bank of West Palm Beach is one of the oldest banks in Florida.

It has never owed one dollar and has never redemitted a paper. It is the only national bank in West Palm Beach and handles a large business for northern capitalists who spend the winter in Florida. The bank occupies one of the most prominent corners in West Palm Beach, and is equipped with all complete systems of safety deposit vaults and banking fixtures as can be found in the south, according to Mr. Manley.

Mr. Griffin is in Florida and assumed his duties as president of the bank Wednesday.

WARMER WEATHER AND RAIN TODAY, SAYS FORECASTER

Breezes that fanned the sunny island of Cuba and played over the waters of the Gulf stream on their way northward were responsible for the mid-winter spring experienced here Wednesday, according to C. F. von Herrmann, head of the United States weather bureau station in the Atlanta Trust company building.

Mr. von Herrmann stated that the temperature Wednesday was 66 degrees at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, which was 9 points lower than the hottest day in January that has ever been recorded here. The warmest January day on record for Atlanta was January 11, 1889, when the mercury rose to 75 degrees.

The weather bureau announced that Thursday morning would be still warmer, with rain in the afternoon, and that it would be cooler at night. Mr. von Herrmann said that the temperature would be around 60 degrees at 7 o'clock this morning.

Chasing Auto Thief, Sheriff Captures Still

Farmer Says Ninety-Gallon
Copper Still Was a Present to Him.

Rome, Ga., January 4.—(Special.)—Sparticus Holden, engaged in agricultural pursuits in Floyd county, last night received an appropriate New Year's present in the form of a modern copper moonshine still.

And as the moonshine shone from a cloudless sky on the same evening, he had to surrender it to the sheriff, who just happened to run up on him while chasing an automobile thief, that had stolen a car from in front of the solicitor-general's home in Rome.

This is how Farmer Holden was overtaken with bad luck: Frank Barron, well-known Rome man, was visiting Collector-General James J. Adcox late Tuesday night. He left his automobile in front of the latter's residence. A short while later, he discovered it had disappeared.

The sheriff, deputy sheriff and Mr. Barron jumped into another car and chased the thief. Both automobiles were traveling at a high rate of speed, with that of the robber gaining.

A number of miles from Rome the sheriff's car almost ran into a two-horse wagon. He stopped, and there displayed in the soft moonlight was a 90-gallon copper still. Holden said it had just been given to him as a present.

The chase was abandoned. The sheriff possesses a new still and Holden a few changes which he must face in court. Mr. Barron is without a perfectly good automobile.

REV. ROBERT BELL TO LEAD MIDDAY PRAYER MEETING

Rev. Robert L. Bell, pastor of the Pryor street Presbyterian church, will lead the midday union prayer meeting today, conducted by the churches of Atlanta, as a part of the national day of prayer program.

The meetings, which are held at 12:05 each day during the week in the gymnasium of the Y. W. C. A., in the Arcade building, have attracted unusually large crowds, and much interest has been manifested in them.

The topic which will be taken up at the meeting will be "Foreign Missions." Educational, medical and industrial missions will be considered under the head of this subject.

Services Wednesday were conducted by Bishop H. J. McKill, of the Episcopal diocese of Atlanta. His speech had a special bearing on the international arms conference, and a prayer was offered for the success of the conference.

Business men of the city who cannot attend the 12 o'clock services in their respective churches this week are cordially invited to come to the midday meeting in the Arcade building. Attendance during the past few days has been very gratifying to those in charge of the services.

HARRIS PRESENTS BILL FOR UNIFORM REDISCOUNT RATE

Washington, January 4.—A uniform rediscount rate bill, which would be compulsory under a bill introduced today by Senator Harris, democrat, Georgia. He said that the present law was designed to provide for different rediscount rates in order to be flexible to meet the needs of each district but, he declared, it had actually operated to discriminate against business interests of certain districts.

ENTERTAINMENT GIVEN FOR R. N. FICKETT, SR.

The Board of Deacons of the Baptist Tabernacle tendered on Tuesday evening a reception and banquet to R. N. Fickett, Sr., chairman of the board, in recognition of fifty-five years continuous identification with his congregation, more than thirty of which he has acted as chairman of the official board.

The board originally consisting of seven members has been added to from time to time until it now numbers forty-five. The deacons and their wives were present on Tuesday evening, each of whom expressed their appreciation, gratitude, love and loyalty to Mr. Fickett.

Twenty-three years ago the Tabernacle congregation was formally organized. Its membership for the most part originating in the Jones Avenue Baptist church. The Sunday school numbered 127 students at that time. The church has grown through the years. Its membership now numbers 2,346 and the average attendance of the Sunday school for 1921 was 1,341 per Sunday.

The remarks of more than forty persons at the banquet will be preserved and issued in booklet form. The unanimous opinion of the speakers was that our church was never in better spiritual condition.

Mr. Fickett responded in terms of feeling and emotion to all the sentiments expressed and pledged his loyalty and co-operation to the board and the church.

HEARINGS ON FORESTRY BILL OPEN JANUARY 9

BY JAMES A. HOLLOMAN.
Constitution Bureau.
Raleigh Hotel.

Washington, January 4.—(By Constitution Leased Wire.)—Georgians are deeply interested in the hearings which begin Monday, January 9, on the Snell-McCormick national forestry bill.

The last session of the legislature provided a forestry commission, and several members of the commission will be in Washington at this conference. Several forestry enthusiasts are already arriving on the scene. Among the first to arrive is Charles Lathrop Pack, of Lakewood, N. J., president of the American Forestry association, which is conducting educational forestry campaigns throughout the country. On the subject of the bill Mr. Pack told The Constitution today:

This measure is of vital importance to the country because forest products enter in a large measure into every business in the country. The Snell-McCormick bill asks an appropriation for increased fire prevention work, for reforestation, for other forestry work and for buying lands. Forests can not be grown in a day and with the center of the lumber industry near the Pacific coast, resulting in high freight rates, the business of the country demands we begin at once to put the millions of idle acres in the east and middle west to work growing trees.

During the week the following will be heard: D. L. Goodwillie, Chicago, for forestry committee, United States Chamber of Commerce; Colonel W. B. Greeley, chief United States forest service; George S. Long, Tacoma, for forestry committee National Lumber Manufacturers association; E. T. Allen, Portland, Ore., Western Forestry and Conservation association; Alfred Gaskill, forester of New Jersey; W. UNKNOWN PATIENT AT U. S. HOSPITAL NOW IDENTIFIED

The man who was found at Decatur about two months ago and sent to public health service hospital No. 48, and who was unable to speak, hear or talk with anyone, has been identified as Fred Ward, of Weaverville, N. C. The identification was made Wednesday by a relative who saw the man at the hospital, was the result of a newspaper story printed in Atlanta of a search for a missing son, by J. N. Ward, of Weaverville.

Red Cross authorities, who had been seeking the relatives of Ward, communicated with Mr. Ward in Weaverville, with the result that the man was identified Wednesday. The identification was completed Wednesday by Mrs. P. G. West, a relative. She said that Ward is only 28 years old, although he has the appearance of a man nearer 40.

He has been a deaf mute for some time, Mrs. West said. In an effort to travel to Winston-Salem, N. C., she said, he continued on to Greenville, as he was unable to tell the conductor his destination. From Greenville he went to Decatur, Ga., where Sheriff McCurdy found him wandering about and thought him a shell-shocked former soldier. Ward was sent to the hospital.

Considerable improvement in his condition was brought about by treatment at the hospital. When he left for his home Wednesday, however, he was still unable to speak, hear or communicate his thoughts in any way.

MURPHY PLANS FIGHT ON PROPOSED CHARTER

Opposition within city council to the revised charter proposed by Councilman Edgar Watkins developed into an open attack on the new charter Wednesday by Councilman J. C. Murphy.

The councilman assailed the charter as "perpetrations" and declared that "as drawn by Mr. Watkins it is nothing more or less than the old charter of commerce, under another name."

He declared that under Mr. Watkins' plan "the mayor would be nothing but a figurehead, an after-dinner speaker, and the aldermanic board would amount to even less than that. The manager would be a powerful czar in supreme authority. I know the constituents I represent do not want it."

He asserted that he would lead a fight in council to block the charter in its present form.

BITS OF NEW YORK LIFE
BY G. G. MINTYRE

New York, January 4.—There is serious agitation in Manhattan for later theater hour. Irving Berlin's usic Box, which has become a rendezvous for those who like $10 shows

People are forced to travel great distances, in many cases, to get to the theatrical district, and when they strike the traffic tides motoring be-not opening until nearly 9 o'clock, nine is the hour that it is believed still be adopted.

It is not so easy to travel great distances in the theatrical district, and when they do, they are obliged to take a taxi, which becomes a snail-like process, in fact, water-gauging has resulted in such a number of mud holes that pedestrians are obliged to wade through them, and are in danger of loss of postage.

New York welcomes any little assurance in its rushed existence and its crowded streets.

Old fashions, too, are returning to theater this winter. The smartest people rattle to the play in giacas, and the promenade, so popular in the days of crinolin and hoopskirts, has been restored. Young bloods, after a leisurely dinner on their own, drop into a musical

"Can't smoke in this theater?" said one of the girls. "Isn't that priceless?"—and she walked down to her at with her cigarette in her hand, waiting for someone to start some-

It is a strange fact that those who seem to be most in material positions, are the hungriest in soul.

A recent examination of the feet of 356 pupils in New York schools, showed that 10 per cent of the boys and 15 per cent of the girls had ingrowing toenails.

On several occasions others came to Him for advice as to what to do with their lives, and His reply was always to get rid of the things which made the spiritual life a secondary affair.

Ingrowing nails are caused by wearing shoes too narrow, too pointed and too far outflared from the natural straight inside sole line. This vanity is almost as prevalent among persons purporting to be of the masculine sex as it is among papists in the

CHILD PLACEMENT TO BE DISCUSSED

Development of juvenile court systems and control of child placements will be important topics discussed at the second day's session of the conference of representatives of public welfare departments of five southern states held at the Wincoff hotel. The first conference came to an end Wednesday night after resolutions had been adopted endorsing the organization of state councils of social agencies in all southern states and pledging the co-operation of the five state welfare departments in such organization work.

Burr Blackburn, secretary of the Georgia state board of public welfare, who invited the other representatives to Atlanta, announced Wednesday night that the Thursday session will be devoted largely to a discussion of the following subjects:

Subjects for Today.

Mental hygiene, development of juvenile courts, control of child placements and enforcement of child labor laws.

At the Wednesday session the welfare workers recommended that a national foundation fund be established which would have an income sufficient to furnish a secretary to at least one southern state council of social agencies.

Some of the most prominent welfare workers in five states are attending the conference. The following are participating in the session of the Wednesday meeting:

J. C. Williams, of Columbia, S. C., was elected chairman at the Wednesday meeting but received a telegram at night telling of a death in his family. He returned to Columbia and another chairman will be named at the Thursday meeting to take his place. L. B. Green, of Montgomery, Ala., was named secretary. Chairman Williams and Mrs. L. B. Bush, of Montgomery, were principal speakers at the Wednesday session.

Attending Conference.

Those present at the conference Wednesday were the following:

James C. Logan, assistant manager Red Cross for the southern division; James L. Sibley, extension professor, University of Georgia; Y. M. Brown, North Carolina state board of charities; Mrs. Lorraine B. Bush, director Alabama child labor inspection; Miss Laurine Barnes, inspector of institutions of child welfare departments, Montgomery; Miss Esther Lee Rider, head child labor inspector, Montgomery; Miss Rhoda Kauffman, assistant agent state board of public welfare, Atlanta; Boyce M. Edens, state agent, department of public welfare, Atlanta; Miss Mary McLeod, state agent, public welfare, Atlanta; W. Baxter Gass, secretary board of state charities, Nashville, Tenn.; E. F. Carter, executive officer state child welfare board, Raleigh, N. C.; Lemuel B. Green, field agent, Montgomery; Burr Blackburn, secretary state board, Atlanta; Mrs. Clarence A. Johnson, public welfare board, North Carolina; Ellison Capers, parole officer, Columbia, S. C.

RECKLESS DRIVING CHARGE AGAINST DICK IS DROPPED

Charges of reckless driving against Sam Dick, of 414 Peachtree street, held under $2,000 bond late Tuesday following the death of Mrs. Martha Hunter, of Stockbridge, Ga., in an automobile collision, were dropped by the police Wednesday.

Rev. G. W. Hunter, husband of the woman who was fatally injured, directed a letter to the police Wednesday absolving Mr. Dick from any blame in the collision, which occurred between Mr. Dick's machine and a car driven by Rev. Mr. Hunter.

The body of Mrs. Hunter will be taken to Stockbridge Thursday. Funeral services will be held there at the Rock Hill Baptist church. Mrs. Hunter was 80 years old. Besides her husband, she is survived by her brother, John J. Golden, of Kirkwood; two adopted children, Ruth and Andrew Hunter, and four nephews, A. J. Golden, T. W. Golden and G. F. Golden, of Atlanta, and James Golden, of Egan Park.

OFFER TO LEASE MANSION RENEWED BY J. R. SMITH

J. R. Smith, prominent Atlanta real estate man, conferred with Governor Thomas W. Hardwick, Wednesday, and renewed his offer to lease the governor's mansion property at Peachtree and Cain streets for a term of fifty years at an average rental of $25,000 a year. Mr. Smith's original proposal was good for ten days and as this time had expired he renewed the offer for ten days longer, depositing a certified check for $5,000 to show good faith. The governor announced that the proposal would be considered at a meeting of the governor's mansion lease commission which will be held in the governor's office January 10.

At a recent meeting of the commission two other proposals to lease the property were made, one by the Massey Realty Co. and the other by W. F. Wincoff. All proposals will be considered at the next meeting of the commission.

Slayers of Jones File Petition For Clemency

Moultrie, Ga., January 4.—(Special.)—Bill Radney and John T. McCracken, serving life sentences for murder in connection with the killing of Henry T. Jones, a prominent sawmill man, in 1917, have filed a petition for clemency with the prison commission. The plea, supported by letters from several of the trial jurors, who declared "we hated to find the defendants guilty of murder or acquit them."

Jones was killed under unusual circumstances. His slayers insisted that at the time they were members of a sheriff's posse trying to arrest a negro wanted for a felony. Jones was shot while crossing a bridge, which Radney and McCracken were guarding. They declared that in the darkness they thought Jones was the negro and called upon him to stop. He immediately began shooting, the accused men said at their trials.

Jones' version of the killing, as given in his dying statement, however, was different. He said that the demand to halt was accompanied by a fusillade of shots and that he was mortally wounded before he could draw his own gun. The state insisted that even if Jones did shoot first, he had a right to do so on the reasonable assumption that he was being stopped by highwaymen.

At the first trial the jury, after being out nearly three days, returned a verdict finding Radney and McCracken guilty of voluntary manslaughter. They were sentenced to 10 years each in the penitentiary. The verdict was set aside on the contention of attorneys for the defendants that the slaying of Jones was either murder or justifiable homicide.

At the second hearing of the case Judge Thomas so charged the jury, and a verdict of murder, with a recommendation of life, was returned. McCracken and Radney, both old men, were sentenced to life.

FRUIT EXCHANGE OFFICERS DELAY VOTE ON REMOVAL

Action on the proposed removal of the Georgia Fruit Exchange headquarters from Atlanta to Macon has been deferred, pending an investigation, which the executive committee will make at its next meeting in the near future, according to J. C. Carlisle, of the fruit exchange.

The executive committee met at the headquarters of the exchange Wednesday and decided to postpone the investigation until more data can be secured on the subject.

J. C. MURNAN HERE AS FLORSHEIM MANAGER

Coming here from Augusta, Ga., where he has been identified with the shoe trade for six years, J. C. Murnan is now the manager of the Florsheim shoe company's store at 17 Peachtree street, succeeding A. L. Ray, who has resigned to enter the shoe business for himself.

Mr. Murnan is originally from Indianapolis, where he was connected with the Florsheim company for eleven years. Later he managed a Florsheim store in Savannah for a year, and following this spent six years in Augusta in charge of a Florsheim branch house.

Mr. Murnan, though here for only a few weeks, is thoroughly imbued with the "Atlanta spirit" and declares he feels Atlanta is to be a most pleasant and profitable location for him.

His long shoe experience, coupled with an affable and courteous nature, will make him a welcome acquisition to Atlanta's business and social world. His wife and two children have arrived to make this their permanent home.

RAILWAY OFFICIALS ARE ELECTED

Savannah, Ga., January 4.—(Special.)—At the annual meeting of the Augusta and Savannah railroad here today directors were elected, the directors named officers and it was announced that the semi-annual dividend of 2 1/2 per cent will be paid in January and June.

Directors and officers chosen are: George J. Mills, Savannah, president; Charles Ellis, Savannah, vice president; A. R. Lawton and George E. Pennell, Savannah; George J. Baldwin, of New York; Paul Mustin, Augusta, and R. C. Neely, Waynesboro. J. Sullivan Bond is secretary-treasurer.

MACON OFFICIAL REPORTED MISSING

Macon, Ga., January 4.—(Special.)—Assistant Sanitary Inspector W. M. Vann, of Macon, who is wanted as a fugitive from justice, is reported missing today and the police are making a search for him.

He was arrested two or three days ago on information from West Palm Beach, Fla., that the governor of Florida had issued a requisition for him for passing a bad check, but was released on his own recognizance. Today when his case was called in recorder's court he failed to respond and later detectives reported he had left the city.

PACKER CONSENT DEGREE ATTACKED

BY JAMES A. HOLLOMAN,
Constitution Bureau,
Raleigh Hotel.

Washington, January 4.—(By Constitution Leased Wire.)—Denouncing the so-called packer consent decree as a "clog in the wheels of industrial progress and an interference with the natural functioning of business," Senator Stanfield, of Oregon, today said he hoped the attorney-general, without unnecessary delay, would petition the courts to annul, or at least modify it.

Senator Stanfield said a number of important industries had been wiped out or were so enfeebled as to be useless because of the operation of the decree. He said he could not understand why farmers in any number would give support to a measure which necessarily injures them because, as he charges, it impairs the available means for the distribution of their products.

"I have been stigmatized as a friend of the packers," said Senator Stanfield. "So I am. I am the friend of the packers when they are right; their enemy when they are wrong. If big business does wrong, that is a simple law to deal with it; if it does right, every encouragement should be given by the people of the United States."

"The evil that a decree of the character mentioned can do is illustrated by what has already occurred in my state. It has literally wiped out canning and other concerns which were engaged in a business that was valuable to the farmers and the consumers alike. By taking away from the packers the right to make use of their machinery for the distribution of so-called unrelated lines, wholesome business on the Pacific coast has lost a number of cases been prostrated."

Don't Punish Farmers.

"Of course, regulate the packers if they are wrong, but don't punish the farmers and the consumers by paralyzing their efforts to serve the public. The decree is absurd and grotesque, but it is worse: it stays the march of business progress. In a country like ours, we ought, above all things, to be progressive. We ought to utilize, to the fullest possible extent, all the machinery we have."

Continuing, he said: "The plea of the wholesale grocers that they will suffer pecuniary loss if the consent decree is modified, cannot be recognized. It is in no sense valid. If they are unable or unwilling to so equip themselves as to be able successfully to compete with the packers, that is not the concern of the government."

"The only concern of the government is to see that business of any kind is not crippled by laws and decrees which manifestly are unjust. Co-operative farm organizations and others want to get their product to the consumers with all possible speed, at the lowest possible cost. If the wholesale grocers are able to perform this service in an efficient manner, let them do it. But to exclude others from the right to engage in this kind of activity is a proceeding that reason will not support."

"As I have already said, this decree has ruined hitherto thriving concerns in my state. If allowed to stand, there is no telling how much injury will result from it. The consumers in the cities are just as vitally concerned as the organizations and individuals who can their fruit, vegetables and other food supplies. It is hardly to be expected that our government can take these facts in mind, give any consideration to the plea that the modification of the consent decree is going to drive some wholesale grocers out of business."

Must Drop Out.
"If the wholesale grocers are unable to hold their place in the industrial procession, they will just have to drop out and allow something or somebody else to step in."

Senator Stanfield said he was sure when the farmers, through their organizations, demanded so long and so urgently that the packers be regulated, there was no thought that they should be eliminated. He declared he was confident that the farmers only wanted to be assured that the big five would not be guilty of acts which work an injury to agriculture.

"But it is absurd to believe that any farmer would think that the scrapping of packer equipment would add anything to the resources of agriculture or afford any protection to men engaged in producing and selling the food of the nation," said Senator Stanfield.

ATLANTA WILL HONOR HERO DEAD THURSDAY

Another train load of 25 southern hero dead of the world war will arrive in Atlanta, at the Terminal station, Friday morning at 8:15 o'clock, and all patriotic Atlantans will be on hand to take part in the memorial services which will be conducted by Chaplain John A. Randolph, of Fort McPherson. It is reported that no Atlantans nor Fulton county hero will be in the shipment.

CONGRESSMAN UPSHAW LANDS NATIVITY PLAY

On the eve of his return to resume his duties in congress, Congressman W. D. Upshaw highly commended the nativity play presented at the Auditorium as a municipal Christmas pageant.

"Before I return to Washington I feel constrained to offer my enthusiastic congratulations to the people of my home city on the wonderful wealth of sacred inspirations that came to the thronging thousands who witnessed the nativity play at the Auditorium Sunday afternoon."

"It is cause for further congratulation that this marvelous presentation of Bible truth and sacred history has been repeatedly witnessed in Atlanta, but it so occurs that in my driving, busy life I have never had opportunity to see it before. And now I realize the mental and spiritual poverty of every man, woman and child who has never sat under the spell of this indescribable Atlanta production."

"I could but remark to Mrs. B. M. Boykin, president of Atlanta Woman's Club, 'that evermore I must look back upon that mountain-peak experience on New Year's Day as a unit of computation and commemoration for every man and woman I meet who has never felt the impact of that enriching and inspiring experience.'"

"To Mrs. Dora Hood Johnson, the remarkable gifted Atlanta woman who gave this play to the world, Atlanta owes a monument of appreciation and a debt of gratitude that can never be paid."

And a proportionate debt is due the brilliant cases of Atlantans who supported the author with such rare histrionic talent. "It seems almost a pity that every Sunday is not a Christmas or a New Year's Day, for the recurrence of its presentation still cause every time an unpeakable uplift that will make a better and a happier people."

TENTH DISTRICT SCHOOL OPENS

Sparta, Ga., January 4.—(Special.) The spring session of the Tenth District Agricultural and Mechanical college, at Granite Hill, opened Wednesday morning with one of the largest opening attendances in its history. Practically every pupil attending the school has matriculated and many new pupils have been enrolled. President Elrod is looking forward to a most successful school session.

COCA-COLA MEN HEAR ADVERTISING TALKS

Interesting and instructive talks on advertising featured the second day of the annual convention of Coca-Cola salesmen and plant managers held at the Coca-Cola plant on North avenue Wednesday.

"Outdoor Advertising," was the principal talk of the morning session, by C. G. Green, assistant advertising manager. B. S. McCash, one of the vice president of the company, presided.

Delegates to the convention were told by Howard Candler, president of the company, of the new factory that will soon be constructed in Boston, Mass., which will be the fourteenth operated by the company.

During the morning in addition to the talk made by Mr. Green, other speakers were listed on the program. "How to Use Regular Advertising Material to Obtain the Best Results," was explained by F. T. Necker, supervisor of the decorating division, with headquarters in New York city; "Advertising the Special Occasion," J. R. Dugan, of Ohio, and O. W. Moore, of Texas; "Selling the Dealer on Advertising," by B. N. Harris, sales and advertising manager of the New York division; "Demands—That's the Thing," by J. M. Elliot, supervisor of salesmen.

At 12:30 o'clock the morning session adjourned for lunch at the Georgian Terrace. During the afternoon talks were made by C. D'Arcy, president of the D'Arcy Advertising company, on "Printers' Ink in 1922," and "Several Little Things," by B. S. McCash.

Harrison Jones will preside over Thursday's session of the convention, which will close Friday.

STATION BURNS AT BOSTON, GA.

Thomasville, Ga., January 4.—(Special.)—The Atlantic Coast Line passenger station at Boston was burned at an early hour this morning. The fire, it is believed, resulted from a small stove in the building. The baggage and mail in the station was destroyed almost entirely. The building was a wooden structure and had been in use a number of years. The freight station is being used temporarily for passengers.

STATE BOUNDARY CASE IS ARGUED

Washington, January 4.—Georgia's suit against the state of South Carolina, brought under an act of the Georgia legislature passed in 1917, involving the boundary dispute between the two states, which has prevailed for over a century, was argued in the supreme court today. The final location of the boundary line between the two states is declared of utmost importance in view of the three rivers, the Savannah, the Chattahoochee, which forms the boundary.

Georgia claims that the boundary is the middle of the three rivers where there is no island, that the islands have been conceded to it by South Carolina and that where there is an island in any of the three rivers the boundary line is midway between them and the South Carolina shore.

South Carolina claims that the boundary in the rivers, where there is no island, is the low-water mark on the Georgia side, and that where there is an island, that the line is low-water mark on the north shore of the island.

MORE BLOOD CLOTS FOUND IN MYSTERY

Macon, Ga., January 4.—(Special.)—The finding of two pools of blood on the main highway between Camp Wheeler and Macon today added renewed zest to the search for the body of A. P. Sexton, missing Royston planter, who is thought to have been murdered several days ago and his body thrown in a swamp near Macon.

Specimens of the blood are being examined at the Macon hospital to determine whether or not it is from the body of a human being and in the meantime the territory for several miles around the place where the clots were found is being combed by several searching parties.

Sexton's relatives are convinced he was murdered, and today a Pinkerton detective arrived here to aid in solving the mystery.

Both city and county sleuths are aiding in the search, and several other parties are continuing the search along the highway between Macon and Royston.

RAIL REVENUES TO BE REDUCED ABOUT $80,000,000

New York, January 4.—Freight rate reductions on farm products, made voluntarily by the railroads and ordered by the interstate commerce commission, will cut down rail revenues throughout the country by approximately $80,000,000, it is estimated here. The commission's order calling for a decrease of freight rates on hay, grain, grain products and alfalfa for trans-Mississippi territory will go into effect on Saturday and will add 6 1/2 cents to the 10 per cent voluntary reduction of rates on various classes of farm products made effective January 1 by all railroads except those of New England.

Arrangements have been made by the commission to resume next Wednesday the inquiry upon which will be based that body's action in directing further rate decreases. One week will be devoted to listening to evidence submitted by the carriers, while shippers of coal, coke, building materials, lumber and forest products will give testimony from January 19 to January 30. The hearings will continue into February, when tariffs on grain, flour, live stock, packing house products, fruits, vegetables, canned goods and dairy products will be under scrutiny. The investigation will not be concluded much before March 1, and it is probable the commission will not be able to reach any decision before April 1.

SISTERS BURNED TO DEATH WHEN STILL EXPLODES

Cairo, Ill., January 4.—Marie Hogan, 17 years old, and Gladys Hogan, 9, sisters, were burned to death today in a fire which police attributed to the explosion of a still. The home of Dennis Hogan, a still maker, a grocer, was destroyed. A still and several jugs of moonshine were found in the ruins. Hogan and his wife and three small children escaped.

Wilson Grows More Eager Each Year To Serve His Party

Frankfort, Ky., January 4.—A message from former President Woodrow Wilson, read in the lower house of the Kentucky general assembly today, said that "each of my birthdays only makes me more eager to serve our great party and through it the country and the world."

The message was in reply to a New Year greeting sent to Mr. Wilson by resolution adopted at a democratic house caucus.

REDUCTION URGED IN FREIGHT RATES

The one-day meeting of the Southern Traffic league Tuesday at the Piedmont hotel, was featured by the appointment of a committee of four to represent the league at the interstate commerce commission rate hearing, and by a decision to advocate a general reduction of freight rates.

The committee is composed of M. M. Caskie, of Montgomery, manager of the Montgomery transportation bureau and secretary of the traffic league; Harry T. Moore, of Atlanta, manager of the local freight bureau; W. S. Creighton, of Charlotte, N. C., of the Charlotte Manufacturers' bureau, and J. R. Ryan, of High Point, N. C., president of the league, and secretary of the Southern Furniture Manufacturers' association.

This committee was given full authority to act for the Southern Traffic league. It will assemble testimony, present witnesses, and generally present the shippers and traffic men.

Governor Denies Starvation Reports From Mine Fields

Charleston, W. Va., January 4.—Governor Morgan, answering a request of United States Senator Howard Sutherland for information "concerning reports that men, women and children in certain West Virginia mining communities were destitute and in a starving condition" today denied that the reports were true.

"Frankly, let me say that these reports," wrote Governor Morgan to Senator Sutherland, "in so far as I have been able to determine from investigations which I caused to be initiated, are grossly exaggerated and are seemingly the product of imaginative minds of interested propagandists who are desirous of distorting conditions that exist in minor communities as a result of depression in coal industry, and difficulties arising from the maintenance of contract between employers and employees."

"It is true," continued Governor Morgan, "that scattering cases of poverty have been discovered, but the welfare agencies find these cases even in times of general prosperity. And it is equally true that there has been no suffering in this state during the present depression which the local authorities or local welfare agencies have been unable to alleviate."

Governor Morgan detailed investigations by George F. Daugherty, state labor commissioner in Fayette and Raleigh counties which, he said, disclosed that the reports of distressing conditions were not of a serious nature and that the county authorities and Red Cross were prepared to give aid in any case of distress or suffering.

A Raleigh county committee was quoted by the governor as reporting to him that "in no instance did we find a family starving and in every case we found they had food enough to last for several days. To be sure, Christmas was not perhaps as bright as it might have been had the men been working, but there was no dire necessity anywhere distributed candies and other things for Christmas among fifty-seven families with a total of 281 individuals, the report added."

SPROUL WILL NOT SUCCEED PENROSE

Philadelphia, January 4.—Governor William C. Sproul will remain the chief executive of the state of Pennsylvania and decline the opportunity to go to the United States senate as successor to the late Senator Boies Penrose, he announced officially here Wednesday night.

The governor's decision to refuse the appointment would have been made by the lieutenant governor following his resignation, was made, he said, "in order not to betray the trust given him by the people."

Sproul stated that he would not "desert the office of governor, the highest gift of the people of the commonwealth, nor use it to further my own ambitions."

He said that during his campaign and at his inauguration he expressed a feeling of profound respect for the office and that feeling has been strengthened as his term has gone on.

In his statement, however, he intimated that he would probably run for United States senator next election.

NINE PER CENT CUT IN TREASURY BILL

Washington, January 4.—Despite informal requests from the administration urging close following by congress of the estimates submitted by the new budget bureau, the treasury department appropriation bill reported today by the house appropriations committee disclosed a cut of approximately 9 per cent. The measure is the first of the regular supply bills to be completed by the committee under the new system provided by the budget act.

The bill as reported carries a total of $118,610,859 for expenses of the treasury during the fiscal year beginning next July 1. This is $12,096,827.38 less than the amount requested in the budget and $17,770,591 less than the total for the current fiscal year. The measure probably will be taken up on the floor tomorrow.

For enforcement of prohibition, $9,250,000 is recommended—$750,000 less than was requested, but $1,750,000 more than was available this year. Prohibition Commissioner Haynes told the committee while the prohibition unit had 1,139 field agents and clerks an additional force of 750 field agents and 103 field clerks was needed. The appropriation, Chairman Madden said, would provide for approximately 75 less additional persons than number requested.

The committee eliminated all requests for salary increases and reduced the estimates under public buildings approximately $2,800,000. Among the items eliminated was $500,000 for purchase of a site in Washington for a national archives building, $1,000,000 toward construction of a vault for the treasury, $735,000 for repairs to public health service hospitals caring for war veterans, which will be supplied, Mr. Madden said, under appropriations for the veterans bure and $73,000 for the Boston immigration station.

wholesale industrial movement similar to that carried out in Baltimore, Md. The other was that the chamber should use local men and a local staff in furthering the work of the organization.

Upon the policy of the chamber, said Mr. Foote, the personnel will depend, in answer to a query as to whether any changes in the staff could be recommended by the committee.

The president and three vice presidents of the chamber composed the executive committee. They are Mr. Foote, Robert K. Hambo, Robert C. Alston and Paul H. Norcross.

In the annual report of Charles E. Robertson, secretary of the chamber, made public Wednesday, a comparison was drawn between the growth of Atlanta and other cities during the period of business depression, and it was shown that Atlanta had continued to expand while other cities had remained at a standstill.

Under the head of "new business," the report says:

"Not a Good Year. Nineteen hundred twenty-one has not been a good year for business expansion, and as a natural consequence we can not claim any particular additions to our industrial population. In spite of conditions, however, we have brought to Atlanta a large number of branch offices of foreign corporations. The Palmer and the Metropolitan have been added, and many offices have been vacated by doctors, there is at present only 2 per cent of vacant office space in Atlanta, which fact speaks for itself.

"Atlanta has been peculiarly fortunate during the past year in having no industrial establishments of tremendous size, consequently our unemployment problem has not been so serious. Our more than 500 small and medium-sized factories have been more or less affected, but not to anything like the extent of the larger industries of other cities of similar size."

"The chamber of commerce has been severely criticized for its inactivity along the line of industrial expansion. In this connection it is significant to note that all of cities of its class Atlanta alone has continued its growth during the business depression. It has fewer unemployed, less distress and fewer homes and stores vacant."

Follow Economic Lines.

"Industrial expansion must necessarily follow economic lines. It is no longer attracted by ready-made propaganda, nor does the progressive city offer such inducement as free sites, water, taxes, etc."

"During the past year we have had many opportunities to secure new industries, but in practically every case it has been dependent upon selling a large proportion of the stock locally. Even a casual investigation has proven the impossibility of carrying such a plan through."

"During the past year the activities that have been started by the chamber are the Junior Chamber of Commerce, the woman's department, the chamber of commerce grand jury, the enlargement of the 'City Builder,' and the awarding of certificates of achievement to Mrs. Samuel Lumpkin and Dr. Michael Hoke."

Advocating a membership campaign, the report states that there has been a considerable reduction in the membership roll.

Drug Specialists company; Alpha Drug company, Reliance Distributing company, Herman Levin, Max Gordon, Barney Braustein, Louis Biloon, John Gorini, Charles J. Steinberg, Donfiglio Venusti, John A. Penna, Nathan Feld and Arthur Kraus.

The indictments, returned after an investigation of several months conducted by Assistant United States Attorney Maxwell Mattuck, followed complaints of lax enforcement of the Volstead act and frequent shifts in the federal prohibition headquarters.

When Federal Judge Knox this afternoon ordered the seals broken, it was found that the defendants had been charged with defrauding the government by issuing false and fraudulent withdrawal permits, whereby liquor exceeding vastly the amounts allowed any one defendant for the compounding of drugs had been withdrawn. The offense alleged to have involved wholesale quantities of liquor, ranks with a felony and, upon conviction, the defendants would face three-year prison terms.

Contains One Count. The indictment contains but one count, with overt acts cited in support of the charges. The method alleged to have been employed parallels that charged against post office clerks recently asserted to have issued fraudulent money orders far in advance the current number which legally could be issued. As in the case of money orders, the withdrawal permits are "put out in blank and numbered serially."

Orr, Lynch and Duffy appeared before Federal Judge Knox late today and entered tentative pleas of not guilty were released in $5,000 bail each. Counsel also entered not guilty pleas for the drug companies indicted. No additional bail was set in these cases, as all were under bail in connection with other charges.

Judge Knox granted a postponement until tomorrow in the arraignment of Reddy, Murphy and former Director Hart.

"WILSON HOUR" OPENS CAMPAIGN FOR FOUNDATION

The national committee on the Woodrow Wilson foundation has designated the hour from 12 o'clock to 1 p. m. on January 16, as "Wilson Hour," according to news received here by member of the foundation committee.

The Wilson Hour will mark the opening of the campaign to establish the foundation. During that time contributions will be received but not sought, it is stated. Announcement will be made that every man and woman connected with the organization of the foundation—state chairman, treasurer, member of the state committee, county and local chairmen and individual canvassers—will be in his home or office for that hour ready to receive contributions for the foundation which will honor Mr. Wilson and perpetuate his principles.

Although the active campaign throughout the country will not begin until the middle of January, subscriptions at any time will be received by Pleasant A. Stovall, Georgia chairman of the foundation, and by William Murphy, the treasurer, at the Citizens and Southern bank, in Savannah. Miss Annie G. Wright, of Augusta, is chairman of the women's committee in this state.

The purpose of the foundation, according to Pleasant A. Stovall, editor of the Savannah Press, who is state chairman, is to honor a great American. It is not strictly political. The national committee, through an organization in each state, will make an appeal for popular subscriptions. The total amount of the fund sought is $1,000,000, $355,000 to be raised in Georgia.

likelihood that Uncle BIM's fortune would travel into the merciless maw of the widow in his daily cartoons, printed in The Atlanta Constitution. The Chicago Tribune, and other papers of national circulation, the artist has been deluged with letters.

Ninety per cent of them call on him to throw a monkey wrench into Mrs. Zander's machinations. They come from every section of the country in such quantities that the Chicago postoffice is actually being badly overworked. Mr. Smith's mail for one day this week amounted to more than 3,000 letters, and all the communications have been sent the Gump family and their impending disaster.

A goodly proportion of these letters came from Georgia and neighboring states, showing that the south is as deeply interested in this all-consuming question as any other section of the country.

No Solace From Creator.

Mr. Smith, the creator of the Gumps, however, has refused to give solace to his anxious enquirers. He has personally read all the mail addressed to him in re Gump, but when seen today was entirely non-committal in reference to the future.

"There is no telling what a day will bring forth," said Mr. Smith.

"Furthermore, there is no telling what will happen to an aging man who has fallen in love."

"And still further, there's no telling what will happen to anybody who has a widow on his trail."

It looks like the Gumps and their thousands of friends are sailing through a stormy sea.

But then again, Sid Smith is a kind-hearted fellow.

It may all turn out right, just like a fairy story.

POLLOCK AGAIN HEADS LYERLY BANK

Lyerly, Ga., January 4.—(Special.)

John L. Pollock, prominent business man and financier, was re-elected president of the Bank of Lyerly at the annual meeting of the stockholders and directors of that institution this afternoon.

The report of the cashier showed that the bank had a very successful year and a dividend of 8 per cent was declared, in addition to a substantial fund being placed on surplus account.

The other officers elected were: Dr. B. F. Shamblin, vice president; H. S. Carson, cashier; Miss Lora Docter, assistant cashier. The board of directors consists of John S. Clegburn, J. L. Pollock, B. F. Shamblin, F. A. Williams and Dr. J. A. Smith.

LYERLY TO HOLD CITY ELECTION

Lyerly, Ga., January 4.—(Special.)

Lyerly's municipal election, for choosing mayor and five members of council, will be held January 9.

At present, the mayor's place is not being sought by anyone. Mayor H. T. Agnew having declined to offer for reelection. There has been rumors of a number of prospective candidates for the place, but so far none has made known any intentions of entering the race.

The old council will probably be re-elected. The following business men compose the council: John S. Clegburn, J. L. Pollock, S. M. Wade, A. F. Docter and F. A. Williams.

Side Talks[®] by Ruth Cameron

WHY THE FIRST YEAR ISN'T THE HAPPIEST

Once upon a time I made bold to tilt against a certain sentimental tradition that is firmly entrenched in the human mind—namely, that the first year of married life is the happiest. I dared to say that I thought that in many cases it was the least happy because it was so full of the inevitable readjustments that come when people of different bringing up, different habits, different sexes come to live together.

And much to my delight I was upheld in my daring by several Reader Friends who were willing to admit that their first year of married life had not been the "radiantly happy year" that sentimentalists claim it should be, and that the later years had been happier.

The biggest factor in the inevitable readjustments is of course the factor of sex. Men and women feel differently about different things, and react differently to different conditions. The significance of their acts and words should be measured by different measures, and each tries to apply to the other his own standard of measurement with inevitable misunderstanding.

A woman who has been married 20 years and is unusually happy with her husband told me that she could never see a young couple in their first year of married life without wistfully wondering how the wife some of the big and little things she has learned about men and wherein they are different from women.

Wherein They Differ.

Here are some of the masculine idiosyncrasies which she has discovered:

"Men are apt to feel at their best at night and grouchy in the morning, especially before they have gotten their coffee in."

"Men concentrate more than women. That is why they hate to be spoken to when they are reading. Women's work is of such a nature that she is accustomed to thinking of half a dozen things at once (as soon as the baby finishes his bottle I must call up and order the dinner), and never gets the habit of concentration as must successful men have it."

"Men hate to ask directions of any sort. Don't know just what this has its root in, but it is true of nine men out of ten."

"Men hate things to be very hot. They do not stand as hot a bath or as hot food as women."

"Men do not like superlatives. Hurt feelings, especially if ostentatiously displayed, enrage them instead of appealing to them."

Men Hate Tears. They seldom weep themselves, when they do they pass through a painful and devastating cataclysm instead of finding emotional relief. Consequently they do not understand women's crying and try to prevent it by a discouraging manner. Women often think this manner applies to the subject over which they are weeping rather than to the tears themselves, and further complications result."

Of course there are men who have feminine attributes and there are women who have masculine attributes. That fact modifies these findings somewhat. But these habits of mind which this woman has sketched are masculine, and the average male possesses some if not all of them.

The Housewife's Idea Box

To Iron the Desired Gloss on Linens

The much desired, beautiful gloss on linens that has been washed depends upon the method of ironing them. Be sure to have the linen piece well dampened. Then iron on the wrong side with a hot iron until almost dry. Turn it to the right side and iron until the desired gloss has been obtained.

Music Club Hears Lecture Recital On Modern Sonata

The Atlanta Music club was provided a special program yesterday, which combined, in admirable fashion, cultural value and entertainment.

Dean H. H. Bellanton, of Chicago College, S. C., assisted by Miss Loretta Purcell at the piano, gave a lecture-recital on "The Sonata," a subject which was not only dry but also a discouraging manner. Women often think this manner applies to the subject over which they are weeping rather than to the tears themselves, and further complications result."

Mrs. Wilmer Moore Hostess at Supper For Bridal Party

Mrs. Wilmer L. Moore entertained Wednesday evening at a delightful supper party in compliment to Miss Mary Butt Griffith and John Henry Dobbs, whose marriage will be an event of this evening.

The house was beautifully decorated for this occasion with graceful potted plants and Christmas foliage. In the dining room the elegantly appointed table was adorned in the center with a mound of pink and white carnations. Silver candlesticks holding blue lighted tapers were placed at intervals on the table.

Miss Moore wore a gown of black jet.

Miss Griffith was attractive in a dinner gown of black lace. The guests included the members of the Griffith-Dobbs bridal party.

Year Book Is Ready for Distribution

The Atlanta Woman's club year book for 1922-23 has just been published and is ready for distribution. Contrary to the usual custom, these books will be mailed out, and members are requested to call for same at the club house, 946 Peachtree street. These books are very beautifully bound and include valuable information regarding the work accomplished by the club during the past year, the list of members, contributors to the auditorium fund and officers and chairmen of committees.

Mr. and Mrs. Gregg Give Small Party.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gregg entertained informally at their home on St. Louis place, last evening, the occasion assembling twenty-five friends.

Vases and baskets filled with Ophelia roses and narcissi were used to decorate the apartments.

Mrs. Gregg wore henna-colored Canton crepe.

Mr. and Mrs. Naedele Give New Year's Party.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Naedele entertained informally Sunday evening at their home in the Deerfield. The apartment was artistically decorated in Christmas decorations.

About twenty couples called during the evening.

Weight of Woman's Vote As Analyzed by Expert

BY LOUISE DOOLY

"The Four Ladies of the Apocalypse" is what I call the four women members of the advisory board, U. S. delegation to the arms party, because they are such a revelation to men.

The clever utterance was that of Mrs. Meredith Ellis, of Washington, D. C., in Atlanta for a few hours en route to California, and the guest while here of Mrs. John K. Otley.

"These women are so utterly different from what the men on the board expected them to be," she continued, "that it is a continuous marvel."

"No less are they an enigma to the newspaper reporters. Women who won't talk. The idea is preposterous. Yet every method of interview has been attempted without avail."

"Reporters have even tried to goad them into making statements or expressing opinion on the work of the conference by telling them that the women of the country are pushing them for statements. 'Your sister woman,' they said, 'is pushing you, are beginning to think,' the more persistent of the newspaper men have held the silent four, 'that you have no real voice, that your voice is only your opinion on the board, are ignored.'"

"And then a polite retort is made: 'Are the women of the board making any statements? Have you succeeded in making them talk?'"

Women to Be Proud Of.

"These four women," continued Mrs. Ellis, "are a group that the women of America may be proud of. They come from the far west, the middle west, New England, and then one, through her years of experience in the Far East, had first-hand study and knowledge of Pacific problems."

Mrs. Thomas G. Winter, of Minnesota; Mrs. Katherine Phillips Edson, of California; Mrs. Eleanor Franklin Egan, of New York, writer on Asiatic subjects, and Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird, of New England. They were selected, too, without regard for political party.

"Sought on all sides, of course, as public speakers, all but Mrs. Bird are responsive, and they are making great impressions."

Mrs. Meredith is herself a woman of national leadership, conspicuous by her deeds, rather than by her personality. For in appearance and manner she is rather one's ideal of the old-fashioned, the ultra-feminine type, this heightened by her low voice and almost timid manner, and her cheeks becomingly turning pink when some of the honors which have come to her are put forward.

An interesting statement by Dean Bellanton was that Busoni, celebrated Italian pianist and composer, considered Walter Stokoff, of St. Louis, the greatest modern American composer, and that much of Europe holds the same opinion, while America does not know he exists. Even the American publisher could give Dean Bellanton no information about his works.

Miss Purcell is a pianist of attainment, and she provided a most pleasing complement to Dean Bellanton's lecture.

The next event in the Study club's program will be a special concert after supper at the Regent hall by a group of artists, headed by Mrs. Knowlton, of Hollis college, in Florida, who are en route home from concerts in New York and at Peabody conservatory in Baltimore, where they presented the same program.

In the dining room the elegantly appointed table was adorned in the center with a mound of pink and white carnations. Silver candlesticks holding blue lighted tapers were placed at intervals on the table.

TOY MONEY

When You Play Store Nothing Could Be Nicer than to Have Some Money to Use

Borrow a penny, a nickel, a dime and a quarter from mother. Put a piece of white paper over the penny. With a soft pencil rub on the paper the same with the other money. Then paste the tracings on cardboard or stiff paper and cut them out. Now when you play store you will have money to give the storekeeper.

Matinee Party At Lyric

Tuesday afternoon Miss Hermione Moers Wilensky, of 31 Park drive, invited several of her close friends to a matinee party at the Lyric theater.

The occasion was in celebration of her sixth birthday. Following the box party, chaperoned by Mrs. Jacob H. Wilensky, there was a party at Nunnally's.

The guests included Marie Rice, Joan Wolfe, Dorothy Ewing, Eleanor Smully, Dorothy Penn, Mary Clair May, Carolyn Weinstock, Carol Rosenberg, Hermione and Gene Wilensky.

OWNERS OF AUTOS WARNED TO CARE FOR THEIR TAGS

Automobile owners, who buy license tags for 1922, are advised to see that these tags are securely attached to their cars, as they will face considerable inconvenience in obtaining duplicate tags this year, in a statement issued Wednesday by Charles O. Cook, cashier of the motor vehicle department in the office of Secretary of State S. G. McDaniel.

Mr. Cook said last year more than 2,000 duplicate tags were issued. The automobile owners are advised particularly to inspect their cars when they take them out of the garage to see if the tags still are attached. Last year many of the tags were lost in garages, according to claims made by owners in seeking duplicate tags.

This year it will require thirty or forty days for the state department to obtain duplicate tags as they will be ordered from the factory. To obtain a duplicate the owner will be required to furnish an affidavit that the tag was lost and also produce proof of duplicate to show the original purchase of the tag.

Another interest of Mrs. Meredith's which is of great concern to the women of the country is the Women's News Service, Inc., which was inspired by Ida Clyde Clarke, now its editor, and first sponsored by the General Federation of Women's Clubs. Mrs. Meredith is convinced of the great future of this organization of women's opinion, and expects it to be a great success.

With the exception of a few women talents are well known, no special invitations to participate have been extended, so it is up to any noble who can sing, dance or tell stories on the occasion to volunteer his services.

Shrine Minstrels Start Rehearsing At Temple Tonight

At the request of Potentate Byrne Gibson, nobles of Yaarab Temple will assemble at Shrine headquarters, 190 Peachtree, this evening at 7:30 to rehearse the program for the Shrine minstrel show of 1922, which event will take place January 17 and 18 in the Auditorium.

A number of the principals have already been chosen, and at the meeting Wednesday night Mr. Somers will pick from the assembled talent nobles who can sing, dance and tell stories to make up the chorus, give volume to the glees and take minor parts in the comedy skits.

FINE BUSINESS DONE BY EQUITABLE LIFE

Members of the local force of the Equitable Life Assurance society met and discussed the work of the old year and made plans for the new year at a luncheon Wednesday afternoon in the Ansley hotel, Norman E. Ellsworth, district manager, presiding.

The Georgia agency of the Equitable, through its Atlanta headquarters, it was pointed out, wrote $2,500,000 insurance in 1921, in excess of that written in 1920, which was a peak year; paid for a million in excess of that written in 1920, and carried over for settlement in January and February, 1922, an additional million.

This great record, according to William E. Duncan, agency manager, was the result of the intensive training and systematic hard work of its representatives throughout Georgia. The program for 1922 calls for an increase of $2,000,000 in 1922 over the 1921 record.

PIEDMONT REBECCAS TO INSTALL OFFICERS

New officers will be installed Thursday night by Piedmont Rebeccas, No. 16, I. O. O. F. The installation will take place at the hall, 423-1-2 Marietta street. Following are the officers for 1922: Mrs. Georgia Donaldson, noble grand; Miss L. C. Cagle, vice grand; Mrs. Eppie Wilson, recording secretary; Miss Pergante, financial secretary; and Mrs. M. C. Strickland, treasurer.

Indications for Spring

You might be surprised to know that the best thing you can use for a severe cough, is a remedy which is easily prepared at home in just a few moments. It is cheap, but for prompt results it beats anything else you ever tried. Usually stops the ordinary cough in 24 hours. Tastes pleasant, too—children like it—and it is pure and good.

Pour 2½ ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle. Then fill it up with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. Thus you make a full pint of family supply—but costing no more than a small bottle of ready-made cough syrup.

And as a cough medicine, there is really nothing better to be had at any price. It goes right to the spot, gives quick, lasting relief. It promptly heals the inflamed membranes that line the throat and air passages, stops tickle, loosens the phlegm, and soon your cough stops entirely. Splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, famous for healing liniments. To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. DRESS BY ANNE RITTENHOUSE

BY ANNE RITTENHOUSE

Eccentric and Colorful Sleeves Reinstated in Gowns in the New Things Fashioned for the Mid-season Which Are Fore-runners of What Will Be Shown to the Buyers in February.

Those in the dress business begin to grow a trifle uneasy when the month of February approaches. It is then the French open the doors to the American buyers and exploit the new lines, fabrics and trimmings. The public is rarely worried at this season. It says that the burden rests upon those who make clothes, not upon it, and American woman is only infrequently interested in a fashion until it appears in the shops in sufficient force to convince her that things have changed.

The American buyer can well say what a theatrical producer said to the public after the first night of a new play: "What to you is only a pleasant evening is to me a venture of $50,000." None outside the business really realize the millions of dollars risked on the buying of a new fashion in February openings in France, the tremendous courage it takes to exploit a new garment by the manufacturers over here, the anxiety caused by the disordering of one line of fabric for another, with its resultant loss of stock and money. The public does not know that anything of interest is happening.

Details from France mean much, however, if they appeal to a woman's personal problems. Therefore, when a few of the new fashions show the re-

Former Atlantan Making Success on Concert Stage

MISS ROSA POWELL

Miss Rosa Powell, of New York, formerly of Atlanta, is making a great success on the concert stage. Miss Powell sang recently in Richmond, as co-artist with Giovanni Martinelli, of the Metropolitan Opera company, and in spite of the arduous and popularity of this distinguished tenor, she shared honors with him in encores and recalls.

Miss Powell has a host of friends in Atlanta since her residence here before the world war, when she was soloist of the Ponce de Leon Avenue Baptist church, and took an active part in the musical life.

Today's Short Story

BY GEORGE T. BYE

HOUSEHOLD LIES

The first night Walter Hoyt called on Olive King, he said at 11 o'clock he was afraid he was keeping everybody up.

"Dear me, no," called Mrs. King from the next room, where she should not have been listening. "We stay up to all hours of the night in this family. Regular night owls, aren't we, Olive, dear?"

(As a matter of fact, Mr. King for an hour had been suppressing yawns with angry difficulty and had gazed and hissed to his wife that he had had enough of this foolishness and he wasn't going to sit up another minute to say good night to that kid.)

Second Night.

Olive went upstairs to put on her ner drug store for ice cream.

"Hasn't she a warm, sunny nature, the little darling?" murmured Mrs. King to Walter. "Never an unkind word crosses her lips. I don't know what I'd do if she would even frown."

(That day Mrs. King had cried for an hour because Olive called her an old fool.)

Third Night.

Walter and Olive were going for a walk.

"Don't tire her," Mrs. King begged of Walter. "She is a delicate, fragile creature, bright as a cricket and just as dainty."

(To tell the truth, Mrs. King had scolded Olive that day for overeating and warned her she would be a fat, sloppy woman before she was 20, and

BEAUTY CHATS

FOOT EXERCISES

A chiropodist once told me that the feet are the most neglected and least understood pair of one's person. Women buy any shoes that are fashionable at the moment and never consider the health or the comfort of the feet. Nor while they are wearing unhygienic shoes do they ever bother to give the feet the extra care needed to overcome the constant harm they are doing.

Short-vamp shoes crowd the toes and make them curl under. If the shoes have high heels the weight of the body is thrown almost directly upon the toes while they are in this helpless position. Pointed toe shoes usually have a long-vamp, crowd the toes together toward the tip of the shoe, so they are less able to take the weight of the foot. They also throw out the joint of the big toe, making a bunion inevitable later in life.

For many years we have been wearing pointed toe shoes and for many years before that shoes with short-vamps, and as yet very few people have designed a shoe that combined common sense and good looks. As a result we have all been wearing harmful shoes and few of us have been exercising our feet to keep them in good health.

Every day when you are in your bare feet, you should take the big toe of each foot and move it up and down, as well as side ways, so that the big joint does not stiffen or grow large. Then all the toes should be moved up and down, so as to strengthen them. Then the whole foot should be stretched out and relaxed and stretched out again and again, exercising the ankle and the Achilles tendon of the heel, and the bones of the arch.

Helen F.—The agar-agar wafers are just as effective as the agar-agar in flake form and probably easier to take.

Thelma A.—You can discourage the growth of hair on the face by rubbing the skin occasionally with peroxide of hydrogen.

Helen—I am glad that the pilocarpine hair tonic has done your hair so much good. If you will keep up the treatment, it will make it grow and bring it in thicker. It takes a long time to improve the health of the hair and you must be patient. I do not think that adding bayrum or alcohol to the tonic will dry the hair. If your scalp is quite oily, you can shampoo it every three weeks and even every two weeks, if it gets too oily. But I would suggest that you brush a little powder over the hair when it gets oily and then brush it out thoroughly. This will make it dry and fluffy.

A Reader—Send me a letter with a self-addressed stamped envelope for the formula of my hair tonic.

unable to grab even an ordinary man.)

Fourth Night.

"She is such a sweet little innocent, and while I know you would not take any young woman to a questionable picture, still I would urge you in this case to make an exception," said Mrs. King while Walter waited for Olive who was putting on her party make-up for the lights-up period in the movies when they show the neighborhood ads.

"You would be a fool to try your snippishness on him."

(Only three hours earlier, Mrs. King, with flaming face, had shouted at Olive that she had found another one of those dirty gutter magazines in the girl's room and that she would tell her father the very next time.)

Fifth Night.

Walter had not appeared at 8 o'clock.

Said Mrs. King: "I hope you haven't made yourself unpleasant to that Hoyt boy. He comes from a good family but he would be a fool to try your snippishness on him?"

Answered Olive: "Is that so? Well, if he doesn't come, I know the reason. He told me last night of all the silly cautioning you have been doing. That's probably queerer him, and I'll never forgive you if it has."

"What did I say that was wrong, you ungrateful girl?"

"Said I was innocent. Do you suppose any boy wants an innocent girl? What would we talk about? Picking flowers and how bright the moon is? And you made him believe

South to Benefit By French Revival, States Corrigan

John Corrigan, Jr., of Atlanta, detailed as consul at La Havre, France, reached Atlanta yesterday in clothes that looked like they came from Peachtree street rather than the Rue de la Paix, spoke without so la lous, ou's or frenzied gesticulation and showed by the increased number of his gray hairs that a consul's life is not all bed and skittles or cognac and pate de fois gras, or all it is cracked up to be by our present-day and bygone fictionists.

Mr. Corrigan has been on duty for two years at La Havre and will return to that post when his six weeks' leave of absence expires.

He speaks hopefully of the French situation. "As soon as the problem of reparations assumes any definite shape and the adverse rate of exchange is remedied, the tremendous recuperative power of the French republic will show itself," says Mr. Corrigan.

"The south will benefit, too, for as soon as France is on its feet, the manufacturers will be on the market for more American cotton than ever before, while the war taught them the advantages of American agricultural machinery."

Mr. Corrigan was for a number of years Washington correspondent of The Constitution. He resigned when America entered the war and was commissioned a captain in the army, and served for 18 months in France. Following the war, he entered the American consular service and is now a consul of career.

"I feel like a countryman coming back to Atlanta after four years of absence," he said. "Havre is as large or larger than Atlanta, having probably 225,000 population; it is an important business center and the second port of Europe in the amount of cotton imports received. But when it comes to life and movement, oh my! what a difference. I am almost afraid to cross the streets here. Atlanta is running true to form in growing overnight, whereas Havre is still suffering from the paralysis of the war."

Mr. Corrigan returned by the steamer Paris, of the French line. He was a fellow passenger with Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford, Mme. Emma Calve and Charles W. Morse. "Fairbanks is one of the most delightful fellows I ever met," he continued. "There is not the least bit of affectation about him. He is enthusiastic over the future of the motion picture industry, but modest as to his own leading part in that development. While in France he was looking to arrange for the presentation of his latest picture, 'The Three Musketeers,' in competition with a French film version now being shown."

Several Georgians have come to the front in the consular service in recent years. Nathaniel E. Stewart, of Americus, Ga., after serving as consul general throughout the Near East, as an inspector of consulates, is now on temporary detail at the state department in Washington. North Winship, of Athens, is also in the consular service and is holding important posts.

HARBOR INTERESTS TO OFFER CLAIMS TO STATE BOARD

Representatives of harbor interests in Savannah, Brunswick and St. Mary's will appear before the state harbor commission Thursday in the governor's office to present the claims of those cities for recognition as the official "state port" of Georgia. The meeting will be held at 10 o'clock in the office of Governor Hardwick and Secretary of State S. G. McElendon, who is president of the state harbor commission, will preside.

Among the Savannah men who will appear are J. F. C. Myers, chairman of the Savannah harbor commission, and Colonel A. R. Lawton.

Representatives of the three ports asking them to appear before the commission and file information concerning their respective harbors, which the commission will need in selecting an official port which eventually will be improved with state aid money.

CANDY COMPANY PLANS TO RESUME BUSINESS

Plans to resume business at another location next week were being made Wednesday by officials of the Wiley Candy company, whose factory, at West Hunter and Haynes streets, was totally destroyed by fire early Wednesday morning.

A stock valued at approximately $200,000 and the building, valued at $40,000, was lost in the fire, which originated in an undetermined manner. The structure, three stories high, was owned jointly by the Wiley company and Carl Witt.

PROMINENT MINISTER DIES IN NEWMAN

Newman, Ga., January 4.—(Special.)—Rev. W. J. Cotter, Newman's "grand old man," and the patriarch of Georgia Methodism, passed away at his home here this morning, after a brief illness. He was 88 years of age, and had been a member of the North Georgia Conference since 1844. Until three years ago, Mr. Cotter had never missed a roll call when conference convened, and in his early ministry had experienced all the hardships of circuit riding days. He was a member of the committee which examined Bishop Warren A. Candler, when the latter was a candidate for ministerial orders 40 years ago, and entertained a warm affection for the distinguished prelate up to the time of his death. The deceased was the oldest minister in the conference.

His wife was Rachel Mullinax, whom he married in 1844. She died in 1902. There are three children surviving him, Mrs. Mary C. Levey, of Newman; Mrs. W. H. Cotter, of Valdosta, and W. B. Cotter, of La Grange, besides 15 grandchildren and 16 great-grandchildren. It is expected that Bishop Candler will conduct the funeral, which will be held at the First Methodist church tomorrow afternoon.

CAMP EVAN P. HOWELL WILL MEET SATURDAY

Camp Evan P. Howell, United Confederate Veterans, will meet Saturday afternoon in the office of Judge Thomas H. Jeffries, ordinary of Fulton county, in the courthouse, according to an announcement made Wednesday by Judge J. Hill Tucker, commander of the camp.

This will be the first meeting Judge

Tucker has been able to attend since the Chattanooga reunion, as he was injured then and has just recovered. An interesting program will be carried out and all members are urged to attend.

Two Girls Injured.

Dawson, Ga., January 4.—(Special.)—Miss Annie Pearl Hayes and Miss Catherine Roberts were injured badly here late Tuesday afternoon, when a car driven by Miss Lullie Daniels, of Morgan, struck them.

A superstition in some lands is that if on Christmas day or eve, you hang a washcloth out on the hedge and then groom the horses with it, they will grow fat.

Rich's Round Thread Sheets and Pillow Cases

OUR OWN brand—Rich's Round Thread. The muslin of which they are made is the best procurable. Every sheet and case is torn, not cut from the piece. That is important, it makes for longer service and regularity, uniformity in sizes after laundering and ironing. We have used our great purchasing power to take large quantities in order to hammer down prices—then we reduced our own regular low prices for this January Sale. It is a brilliant opportunity to buy and save. Yes, to buy supplies for months to come. These prices will be withdrawn after the January Sale.

THE SMILE MIRROR.

Scene: Interior of an Irish peasant's hut. Kathleen, a rosy-cheeked young girl, is knitting by the window.

KATHLEEN: Here's Marya coming up the road. What can it be she is bringing with her? (Kathleen drops knitting and runs to open the door.)

KATHLEEN: What is it you're bringing Marya?

MARYA (holding out a small round mirror): It's a looking-glass I brought from an old woman at the fair.

KATHLEEN: Surely, it's vain you're getting Marya. What do we need of a mirror with the lake so near to show you your face any day?

MARYA: But this is a different looking-glass. It's a fairy glass. The old woman told me about it.

KATHLEEN (looking at it wonderingly): A fairy glass? It can't be!

MARYA: That it is. It's only for smiling faces. If you look in it cross your face, it will crack, or maybe break entirely.

KATHLEEN: You're not telling me that! Put it on the table against the wall, so. It's careful we must be when we look in it.

MARYA: And that's not the whole of it. It will bring good luck to the house as long as it is not cracked. Maybe—maybe it might help make your eyes well.

KATHLEEN: It's the peat smoke that's making them so dim. I can scarcely see the mirror all the time for I might be frowning, not meaning, right before it. Listen, Marya. It's mother must be coming from town.

(Marya runs and opens the door. She starts back as a lady dressed in smart-looking clothes enters.)

LADY (looking very cross and annoyed): Little girl, can you tell me the way to Donegal? We seem to have lost our way, touring through this part of the country. Such roads I never saw! Where is the nearest town?

MARYA: Oh, please, lady, would you be careful! Don't look that way! The glass!

LADY: What are you talking about, child?

MARYA: It's the magic looking-glass. If you don't smile in it, sure will crack entirely. And you're frowning it directly.

KATHLEEN: And it's good luck it will bring to the house if we don't crack it. The old woman in the market told Marya.

MARYA: She knows all about fairies. She's daunted in the fairy ring, and it's from them she got the mirror.

ONE REEL YARNS

THE SNOWMAN.

"Why don't you run out and play in the snow?" said Aunt Carolyn, as Nita sat listlessly by the window watching the pretty flakes swirl down.

"I'd rather not, please," said Nita quietly. That was her usual reply to any suggestion that she amuse herself, ever since she had lost her mother and had come to stay with Aunt Carolyn.

"There's little Jimmy Foster out in the yard," persisted Aunt Carolyn. "He looks lonely. Why don't you go help him make a snowman?"

"I'm too big for snowmen," replied Nita, smiling a little.

"Nonsense," her aunt laughed, hurrying to get Nita's coat and hat for her. She bundled the girl up before she had a chance to make much of a fuss, and before Nita knew what had happened she was out in front, shivering and plans with the little boy next door. And in a short time she had forgotten she was beginning to grow up, as she and Jimmy rolled up huge balls of snow to make the wonderful snowman. The crisp air made her cheeks red, and she laughed as she had not done for many days.

"Goodness," said Nita an hour later, as she stood before the grate. "I'm nearly frozen Aunt Carolyn, but just look at our lovely snowman. I'm as proud of it as Jimmy is."

During the night the weather turned unexpectedly warmer and the snow came out like a big ball of fire next morning. Nita had slept late, and Aunt Carolyn was put out by the breakfast when she came running down stairs. "I must go out to say good morning to my snowman," said Nita. She ran to the window. A minute she was back, and there were tears in her eyes.

"The snowman has melted away," she said. "He's gone. All gone. That's just the way things go."

Nita was very quiet while she ate breakfast. They were just finishing when there was a knock at the door and little Jimmy came shivering in. "Our snowman's melted," said Nita, trying to smile.

"Oh, well, don't you mind," said Jimmy. "Mother says that when the snow begins to melt that's a sign spring is coming, with all the nice flowers."

Nita's face lit up. "That's right," she said, and she turned to smile at Aunt Carolyn. "I had forgotten about the spring."

I asked my chum the other day what "post-graduates" could mean.

"Why, grads from correspondence schools."

"Golly, but you're green."

The Constitution's Weekly Novel

THE GIFT SUPREME

BY GEORGE H. ENGLAND

Next Week,

"The Knight of the Lovely Land," by Evelyn Campbell.

Meiny Stagg, at this precise hour, was sitting in the front window of Con Dougherty's "Grapevine Cafe," over a bottle of mountain dew and the remains of a breakfast so late it might almost have been designated a dinner.

"Damn the luck!" he grunted stupidly, drumming on the dirty tablecloth with dirtier nails. "If things ain't goin' all to the Fritz, I'm a reformer. Flora's in the hospital—my in-laws, Punk Flo—that's another line cut out. Between the Jardin des Palmes an' the Chateau Square she never cleaned up less'n fifty or sixty a week—most all clear velvet for me."

"Then my gent has crabbied the Vinton game, till it ain't producin' a red. Old Vinton has quit, cold, an' the young boob has copped off Muggs, an' the Graun skirt has croaked, an' all them prescriptions is down to that damn mission—any old time I'm liable to get gloughed in—can you beat it?"

Poisonously enraged, he picked up his whisky glass, poured himself a stiff drink and sucked the glass dry. Again he beared out into the heat and stifle of the street. An oath burst from his loose lips. He crouched half-standing, his bloodshot eyes stared at the figure of a man striding rapidly along the opposite sidewalk—a man whose bearing spoke of energy, hope, eagerness—a man in every way the strong antithesis of his own sodden self.

"Him!" he snarled, sinking back again into his chair, as this man turned the corner into Salem street and vanished. "Him, so help me! The damn silk-stokin' missioner—an' pikin' toward St. Philip's, too!"

A dawning thought of dread possessed his muddled brain.

"Huh? S'pose Muggs an' Dan has spilled it to him, where the girl is? An' cut me out o' the chance of sellin' him that info, too? If they have, if they have—"

For very rage his mottled hands twitched spasmodically on the table. By chance they came in contact with the exceedingly keen and pointed steel-knife that had been brought to carve the portehouse. Instinctively Meiny clutched it by the handle. It lay so nicely in his blistered palm, balanced so truly, fitted his grasp with such perfection that a kind of barbarous thrill transfixed his heart.

Furtively he glanced about, saw that no one was watching him; then, with a quick gesture, slid the knife into his inside breast-pocket. A few minutes later, having materially lowered the liquor in the bottle, he slouched out of the Grapevine, slunk down the street and, turning the corner, disappeared from view.

THE GUMPS—ANOTHER COUNTY HEARD FROM

"THAT LITTLE GAME"

By B. Link

blind to the past and seeing only the future—

He drew a step nearer; but she repelled him, still, with her uplifted hand.

"Don't, Bradford," she entreated. "This is something to be solved by reason, not by emotion. By the head, not the heart. Even though every accusation against me were technically disproved, I'd be a drag on you, all your life. Nothing really is disproved, in the public mind. Once a charge is made, some of it always sticks. Always some taint remains, especially in the case of a woman."

"No, Bradford. If that were all, I'd let my heart rule my head. But there's a great deal more. Your family is still there, an impassable barrier between us. Your father's opposition is still alive, more uncompromisingly bitter than ever. If I were to go back to you, with that opposition still active, there could be no security for either of us, no peace, no happiness, no chance for constructive and enduring work. Sooner or later he'd devise other means to discredit and ruin me. And in the end he'd succeed in turning opinion against me. If evidence were lacking, he'd have it manufactured. Money can do all that, and more. I know what the future would hold in store for us, Bradford—for you, if I consented to what you're asking. I'd only be ruining you. No, no, there can be nothing more between us, as long as he objects."

"As long as he objects?"

"Which means—forever."

Vinton could find no answer, for he knew the truth was with her. Still, he did not wholly despair. He stretched out both appealing hands with a cry.

"Good-by," said Sylvia, stretching out her hand to him, absolute finality in her voice. A moment, and she was gone—gone silently to the hidden, inner places of the House of Pain; and Bradford, out on the sidewalk once more, was plodding wearily back toward the Haven.

Spent, broken, crushed, Bradford slowly and dejectedly returned to the Haven, planless and miserable beyond all telling. Exhausted as he was, he nevertheless went out into the kitchen under way for a good, substantial supper, against the coming of "this boys" from the door. Then he returned to the deserted dining room, sat down in a chair close by the door that opened into Moon court, and, bowing his head on his arm along the edge of the table, drew the long, tremulous sigh of a man close to the brink of absolute exhaustion.

At this moment the spirit of murder entered the Little Haven in the venomous, slimy person of Meiny Stagg.

At the door Meiny paused a second, swept the prospect and found it safe. His cowardly heart would risk no chance of conflict or retaliation. Secretly he hoped to strike and undetected slide away, back underneath the surface of his stagnant tarn. His bleared, whisky-reddened eyes shifted about the dining room as he advanced across the threshold silently, crouching, big-naunched, unwholesome as a toad. His hand, deep in his pocket, seemed grasping something as he crept close.

All at once, measuring the distance of his stroke, he withdrew from his pocket his mottled hand—his hand that gripped a freshly-ground steel steak-knife.

"Hey, you!" shouted a sudden voice from the door of the living room, where the cripple appeared, staring with terror. Drop dat, you!"

Meiny shot a poisonous glance at the twisted little figure, now hobbling forward at its best speed, but answered nothing. Even a rattlesnake gives warning before it strikes, but Meiny's sudden soul—if soul he had—dwelt in far fouler depths than any serpent's.

At sight of the steel, flickering in the air, Joe set up a wild, ear-piercing scream of terror.

Started from his reverie, Bradford turned. The knife, aimed to shear through the back-muscles and between the ribs right to the heart, drove up to its handle in his left lung.

With clutching hands that struggled to grip the table-edge Bradford burst from his lips, now salt with the taste of blood—and on the whitewashed wall that seemed to dance and shimmer before his eyes a bloody ruin grew visible, a bright crimson arc spattered there by his agonizing gasping.

Cursing, Meiny snatched out the knife and lifted it, dripping, for another stab.

But Joe's crutch, smashing down upon his head, sent the blade spinning into the sawdust. With some superhuman effort the cripple had managed to throw himself forward, to stand a moment unsupported, to deal a paralyzing blow.

Meiny crouched, his plans thrown out of joint by unexpected attack. He had expected a quick kill and an easy, undiscovered get-away. His liquor-fuddled wits had taken no account of the cripple. Now he faced disaster. A second he paused, trying to think. Yes, he would kill the boy, to be the only witness. He bent, his hand stretched toward the knife. But now again that terrible ear-piercing shriek of Joe's chilled the foul blood in his veins.

Heavy footfalls and other cries from the kitchen, the living room and above stairs, numbed his vulture-heart with panic.

"You son of a —" he snarled at Bradford, who had half struggled to his feet, fell forward on the table—all things now fused in blackness before his eyes—and slid limply to the floor. Turning toward the street, the murderer broke into a staggering run.

Joe, braced against a table, hurled his crutch with his last ounce of energy, just before his anemic body collapsed in a dead faint of horror. The crutch whirled clattering against the doorway and fell across it, precisely as Meiny reached it in heading panic.

Tripped by the missile, the spawn of Irvin Stagg stumbled over it and dove headlong. Spewing obscene curses he sprawled across the sidewalk as some of Bradford's men burst into the dining room, where now, face-downward in the blood-dabbled sawdust, their stricken leader lay.

On the Screen of Sport

by Hugh S. Fullerton

Perhaps the biggest forward step yet taken in football was the organization of the American Football Coaches' association in New York. The formation of this association means a straight fight of the college coaches and athletic directors, backed by the faculties and student sentiment, against professional football. It means a clearer interpretation of rules and a stricter adherence to them. More than that, it means a curtailing of the growing peril of the proselyting, the scouting and the danger of professionalism creeping into the college game itself.

The efforts of the coaches, led by Major Daly, to clarify the rules, to define and to restrict the shift and their firm stand on the opposition to professionalism is a big thing. It indicates that the coaches are entirely in earnest, and the character of the leaders of the movement is a guarantee that they seek reform.

THE BIG REFORM
The big reform that seems certain to come out of the organization of the coaches is that they will put a quick check upon the extension of the football season throughout the winter.

check or stop the custom of long trips and taking students away from their studies for weeks. The tendency to over-advertising and gate receipts by trips certainly is incompatible with opposition to professional football, for such trips take students away for weeks, the colleges depend upon professionalism themselves, and the team trained for the Dartmouth game made a nice showing. It was seemingly common for the fact that Dartmouth played its best game of the season against Penn. Penn would have won by a big score. The coaches were encouraged. They thought the team had turned and the team would come off. The players seemed to take new heart.

The organization of the coaches is certain to act as a deterrent. They see the dangers to the sport more clearly than the players, and they are determined to remedy them for themselves without waiting for public opinion to be aroused to a point where it will compel reforms in the sport.

FOOTBALL MYSTERY

One of the mysteries of football during the first season was the failure of the University of Minnesota to win a team. It was hard to figure that a university with 13,000 students could turn out such poor material. If 13,000 students could produce only a 145-pound back, one of the smallest he made a list of about 130 fellows eligible to play, who from physical examination had shown they had the weight and other requisites for football. He then called on them for a personal appeal. About fifty replied giving more or less good excuses why they could not accept. Just nine responded with whole hearts, ready for work.

The others did not even reply to the coach's invitation.

"From those facts it ought to be clear what the trouble with football at Penn is."

Now we understand.

Do You Need

When the summer students and the post-grads and others who are barred from athletic competition, there are about 2,000 from whom a team can be selected. That is enough. The fact is, however, that the University of Pennsylvania is terribly overcrowded and the faculty would be glad to see a few thousand less. They are not seeking students," and while not antagonistic to football, they are not particularly interested. The application lists are filled and the waiting list long. If a good football player from some prep school wants to enter Penn he not only is not encouraged, but no effort is made to get him in; in fact, if anything, preference is given others. I know, just last fall, three of the great prep school stars of Pennsylvania chose Penn. wanted it and were wanted. They were not solicited, but came seeking education, and they were refused admission because their applications had not been made in proper form at the proper time.

PHILADELPHIA SUPPORTS TEAMS

"Philadelphia is perhaps the most enthusiastic football city in America. Its support of pro football proves this. But the spirit is lacking in the student body at Penn. The call for candidates for the team brought out a bunch of lion-hearted spiders; and some boys desiring to honor their school...but unfortunately colleges are not playing lightweight or middleweight teams. The heavyweights did not respond. Those who did come seemed to lack interest. The coaches yelled, almost prayed, and tried to make a team, but the lack of interest among the students seemed to affect the players themselves. One may not blame them, but they did not work.

Many practice sessions not built the shown up. Part of this is due the fact that the university is so provided it is necessary to hold classes ntil 6 o'clock or later—and there was o chance for a football man to nce classes or arrange hours to get ular practice. I doubt whether

Stocks Are Expected To Suffer Further Losses

BY R. L. BARNUM

New York, January 4.—The movement of prices on the stock exchange today was irregular as was to be expected following the session of violent liquidation on Tuesday. Prices during the morning hours were below the minimums of the previous session, but the session did not end without the customary rallies due to short covering. Considerable confusion exists here as to the course of prices in the immediate future. Some interests are of the belief that the selling of Tuesday was considerably overdone, and that a trading market can be looked for for a few weeks at least. The consensus of opinion is that following a further reaction, prices will again gradually work higher.

Some of the weak features of today's market included General Motors and Sinclair Consolidated. The former established a new low record, the decline being based upon the assumption that the directors will pass the quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share at their meeting to be held after the close of the market. Wall street gossip has it that the executive committee has recommended the passing of the dividend for reason of conservatism. The company, it is understood, must make further heavy adjustments of inventory and bank loans and accounts and bills payable are reported to be large.

It is again rumored here that there will be a change in the management of the Sinclair Consolidated corporation, although nothing official can be learned here in view of the company's strict policy to disregard all rumor. The report, however, is that the Standard Oil company of Indiana, which is already interested in the Sinclair pipe line, will eventually acquire a substantial interest in the parent company.

Call money after opening at 5 1/2 per cent, dropped to 4 per cent in the early afternoon. The drop in the rate had only a slight effect on security prices. Time money is obtainable in large blocks at 5 per cent. A similar rate has been reported on several occasions recently but up to the present only small amounts were available at that rate.

Oil Loan Reported.

The meeting of the stockholders of the Haskell Barre company to vote their approval for the sale of the property to the Pullman company has been postponed until January 12.

It is reported that the Standard Oil and others are supposed to be interested.

Colorado and Southern and Rock Island are expected to be placed in a class with the "oil rails," as the Trinity and Brazos valley, which is jointly controlled by the two roads, is reported to have made application for permission to drill on its right of way which runs through the New Mexico oil fields in Texas.

Better Business Expected.

Steel trade organs expect a better year in 1922 as their weekly reviews express a spirit of qualified hopefulness. It is expected that 1922 will be much better than 1921 for the industry and 60 per cent operations are expected during the coming year. Steel producers have discontinued predicting heavy railroad buying, but as it amounted to only 15 per cent in 1921 a better demand is expected this year. The Pennsylvania has announced the placing of an order for 80,000 tons of rails for 1922 delivery. Last year the railroads placed contracts for 200,000 tons of rails.

Montgomery Ward sales for December were $7,425,000, against $10,050,000 for the same period of 1920. For the year the figures were $75,950,000, against $112,333,000.

Your correspondent had a short talk today with one of the leading bankers in Wall street.

"What do you see now?" he was asked.

Here was the reply: "We can not get a better line on our domestic situation than by watching what the farmers are buying as shown in the large mail order houses. What I have said to you many times before can not be repeated too often. Things here are not going to get right until the agricultural situation is straightened out either by an increase in the prices of what the farmers have to sell or in a decline in the prices of what the farmer buys."

The volume of exports from America declined because of impoverished condition of European countries rather than through weakening of demand for our goods. Hardening of foreign exchange in December indicated revival of confidence in the international situation. Betterment of exchange, however, was disappointing in that its appreciable increase in foreign buying did not accompany it.

A syndicate headed by the Guaranty Trust company, is making a public offering of $40,000,000 Dutch East Indies 25-year 6 per cent bonds at 94 1/2 to yield between 6 and 6.75, according to date of maturity.

GRAIN RECORDS GOOD ADVANCES

Chicago, January 4.—Readiness

with which all margin calling was met today on the exchange, even where the margin demanded was excessive, had a decidedly stimulating effect on the grain markets here. Wheat closed strong at 3 to 3 7/8c net higher, with May $1.11 to $1.11 1/2 and July $1.01 to $1.01 1/2. Corn gained 1 3/8 to 1 5/8c; oats, 7-8 to 1c and provisions, 2-12 to 20c.

The fact that rumors of impending financial trouble at the Corners of the firm had in every instance failed to be substantiated, and that ample funds were shown to be available, led to a general buying and sharp advance as soon as the wheat market opened. Belief appeared to be widespread that yesterday's selling was much overdone, and as a consequence the pit today was at times almost bare of offerings. Another bullish influence was gossip that export business on a liberal scale was in progress and that purchases for Europe during yesterday's depression amounted to 1,000,000 bushels. Absence of moisture in the dry sections of Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas, together with unseasonable rains in Argentina, tended also to renew bullish sentiment. On the other hand, the heavy selling, ascribed to eastern interests, was countered, but reactions that ensued were transient, and the finish was near the top of the day.

Corn and oats advanced with wheat. Shipping demand for the feed grains appeared more active. On the other hand, the heavy selling had been largely shut off by yesterday's break in prices.

Notwithstanding irregularity in the local market, the above gains reflected the upturn of grain values.

GRANDMA NEVER LET HER HAIR GET GRAY

Kept Her Locks Youthful,
Dark and Glossy With Common Garden Sage and Sulphur.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is messy and troublesome. At little cost you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients called "Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and lustrous.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger.—(adv.)

When Auto Skids Into Street Car.

Four persons were badly bruised and shaken up when an automobile driven out Highland avenue by George W. McWhite, Jr., skidded into an inbound Highland street car near Highland View, shortly after 11 o'clock Wednesday night. They are Miss Mary Love, of 11 Peachtree way; Miss Laura Baker, of 427 Greenwood avenue; George W. McWhite, Jr., and J. H. McWhite, both of 24 St. Louis place. Mr. McWhite was driving the party home from an entertainment.

After being given first aid treatment at the home of Mrs. M. Deans, 900 Highland avenue, the injured people were taken to Grady hospital. After having their injuries dressed they went home. The automobile was not badly damaged.

There was much testimony relating to executions at Is-Sur-Tille, none of the witnesses being able to say whether the victims had been tried beyond the claim of some to the contrary as the trap was sprung. War department records, containing the list of 11 legal hangings, listed two at Is-Sur-Tille.

Quite inadvertently, a member of the committee brought out during the examination of a former soldier that since the war he had served 14 months in the Georgia penitentiary for stealing an automobile. No attempt was made, however, to discredit his testimony at that point.

It developed that the command was trying to conceal its position from the enemy and that all hands had been warned that the first man attempting to walk out in the open would be shot. The soldier walked 50 yards beyond the dead line, refused to halt when ordered, and they shot him in his tracks.

There was much testimony relating to executions at Is-Sur-Tille, none of the witnesses being able to say whether the victims had been tried beyond the claim of some to the contrary as the trap was sprung. War department records, containing the list of 11 legal hangings, listed two at Is-Sur-Tille.

Served in Prison.

Quite inadvertently, a member of the committee brought out during the examination of a former soldier that since the war he had served 14 months in the Georgia penitentiary for stealing an automobile. No attempt was made, however, to discredit his testimony at that point.

After he had testified late today, Chairman Brandegee told St. John that he might return home, but the witness stated that Senator Watson had directed him to remain here overnight for further examination tomorrow.

When asked to give the names of the four men with him at the time he is alleged to have seen Major Opie shoot a runner, St. John mentioned first Robert Barkdale, of Lynchburg, a cousin of one of the major's lawyers.

CARTER IS ACQUITTED IN SHERIFF'S KILLING

Blackshear, Ga., January 4.—Roy Carter, charged with murder in connection with the death of Sheriff Robertson, of this county, in a raid on a moonshine still on August 3, was acquitted by a jury here tonight. Carter's brother, Mage, is under sentence to be hanged for the murder of the sheriff. Roy Carter was held in $500 bond on a charge of violating the prohibition law following his acquittal in the murder case.

NINE JURORS OBTAINED FOR TRIAL OF CLABO

Franklin, Tenn., January 4.—Nine jurors were in the box when Judge Hobbs adjourned court here this afternoon. The first juror summoned in the Clabo case had been exhausted. The state had exhausted two of its challenges and the defense had used up three, while the jury had been selected. The court for having named an opinion, and a tenth was peremptory. The jury was named at 10 o'clock. A panel of ten men was summoned tonight, and the business of filling the jury box will be resumed when court reconvenes at 9 o'clock Thursday morning.

While Judge Hobbs had set the case for 1 o'clock tomorrow, it was 3 o'clock before the defense announced that it was ready to proceed, two hours having been consumed by attorneys for the defense attempting to get in touch with witnesses who have not appeared.

It was finally agreed that one witness, State Senator W. T. Moore, of Union county, Tennessee, could be put on whenever he arrived.

Payne Decorated With
The Order of Danilo

New York, January 4.—(Special.) George Payne, editor of The Forum, was notified today that he had knighthood conferred on him in the Order of Danilo I by Queen Milica of Montenegro, for distinguished services in behalf of that country. The order was communicated through Commander Luigi Criscuolo, delegate of the United States to the international committee for the independence of Montenegro.

Mr. Payne is commissioner of taxes and assessments in New York city, is the author of several books, secretary of the committee of American Business Men, and in 1912 was closely associated with Theodore Roosevelt.

He was at one time political editor of The Evening Post, of New York, and has lectured on journalism, one of his most recent books being "The History of Journalism in the United States."

RECKLESSNESS LAID TO AUTO DRIVERS

The automobiles of Dr. B. H. Wagner, of 57 East Hunter street, and W. D. Moore, of 172 Hampton street, collided at Luckie and Simpson streets on Dr. Wagner was attempting to cross Luckie street from Simpson. One was injured, but both cars were damaged.

Charges of reckless driving were made against both drivers by Call Officers Bullard and Crankshaw, who arrived in the new police high-powered car, upon being summoned after the accident.

Two Negroes Released.

Decatur, Ga., January 4.—(Special.)—John and Ed Lowe, two negroes held in connection with the murder of C. W. Walker, aged 26, a Kalb county farmer, were given a preliminary hearing Wednesday and released.

Walker was found dead, his head beaten in with an ax and his body mangled, December 21, on the McDonough road. Authorities have not been able to solve the mystery.

The popular hymn, "Christians, Awake," was a Yuletide present to a little girl, John Dym, the author, who wrote the hymn for his small daughter, Dolly, who found it in manuscript form with the rest of her Christmas gifts.
